State Suspends Its Anti-Trust Laws To Aid National Recovery

Governor Lehman Signs Measure Designed to Aid Recovery Plans of President Roosevelt—Laws Suspended For Duration of Recovery Act—Other NRA Helps Passed by Lawmakers.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP).—New York state suspended its anti-trust law today to permit full operation of the National Recovery Act within the state's borders. Governor Herbert H. Lehman signed a bill passed by the legislature to permit the suspension for the duration of the national act.

Under the bill which the governor signed, any code of competition or trade agreement approved by President Roosevelt becomes New York state law for the duration of the National Recovery Act.

The suspension of the state anti-trust law will permit the formation of codes of competition and trade agreements which heretofore were violations of the Donnelly act. This law was passed to supplement the federal Sherman anti-trust laws.

The measure to which Mr. Lehman affixed his signature was one of several "NRA bills" passed by the legislature during its extraordinary session, ended last week, to bring the state laws into conformity with the federal program.

Another of them, which Governor Lehman also signed today, permits New York state to loan the federal government the services of any state employe to aid in administering the NRA program.

"This means," Governor Lehman said, as he signed this bill, "that if the federal government wants to borrow Joe Canavan, my secretary, or Capt. Brandt, my highways commissioner, or anyone else in the state service, the federal government can have him."

City, town and village employes also are available to Washington if the recovery administration wants to borrow them to help carry out its plans, under the latter bill.

"Still another of the 'NRA bills' permits the municipalities of the state to accept federal grants of money for public works construction under the recovery act, to enter into contracts with the recovery administration and to issue bonds for public works projects to be paid for in part with federal funds.

Two other measures set aside $6,000,000 for grade crossing elimination work in anticipation of federal funds and changed the division of the cost of the elimination when it is paid for in part by federal monies.

FRENCH PREMIER INSPECTS DEFENSES ON BORDER

Paris, Aug. 28. (AP).—Premier Edouard Daladier's visit to intricate fortifications along the German frontier after proclaiming that France had resolved to guarantee Austrian independence aroused keen interest in political circles today.

In a statement issued before he left to inspect trenches and dugouts over a 125-mile front the premier declared that France wants peace, but "it is a duty to assure our own liberty which will be better respected when it is known we are capable of guaranteeing it."

"We must also be on guard," he continued, "to see that decisions of the regular organisms of European life—the League of Nations and the Hague Court of Arbitration—are observed and maintained.

"They have notably proclaimed and defined the political and economic independence of Austria. We are resolved to guarantee it.

"The smaller, weaker, and less populous states have the same rights * * * as those of larger population and area."

Meanwhile, several Socialist members of the chamber of deputies, speaking at a meeting at Angouleme said they feared war within a few weeks if Facist-control should spread to Austria.

Texas Becomes Wet, Washington To Vote

Texas Goes Wet After 14 Years of Dry Laws—Washington State Will Vote on Question Tuesday—Both Sides Active.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 28. (AP).—Texas, the twenty-third consecutive state to vote for prohibition repeal, also legalized 3.2 beer within its vast area, dry for 14 years.

The beer may be sold after midnight September 14. Formal ratification of the voters' repeal sentiments Saturday will be made at Austin November 24.

The final tabulation announced by the Texas Election Bureau, a quasi-official organization maintained by newspapers in the state showed for repeal a majority of 114,485 and for liberalization of the state constitution to permit manufacture and sale of beer, a majority of 128,306.

These majorities were indicated in a total vote counted of 444,649. The election bureau estimated less than 100,000 vote were outstanding.

Seattle, Aug. 28. (AP).—Washington registers its preference either for repeal or retention of the prohibition amendment tomorrow, the 24th state to vote on this proposition.

The campaign has been enlivened by the activities of Dr. Clarence True Wilson, Methodist prohibition leader, and Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Dr. Wilson has conducted a number of debates with wet ladies, while Mr. Farley has urged repeal through letters and telegrams to state Democratic leaders.

President Studies Economic Problems

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt welded his domestic and international economic problems into a closer unit today in meetings with important figures of each.

With Secretary Ickes he talked about making more jobs through the $3,300,000,000 public works program. Also, he received a list of recommendations for members of the important oil planning and coordination committee.

Late today at tea, the president chats with Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England and George Harrison, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

There has been a lot of talk recently of establishing an American stabilization fund to support the dollar in foreign exchange but there is still no sign from the President that he thinks the time is ready to bring the United States currency on a permanent basis with those of other countries.

So, today Mr. Roosevelt had opportunity to discuss, first, the American recovery drive which he puts foremost, and then the effort of Europe to bring about a stop to fluctuations of the dollar in the foreign exchange. He is not much concerned about the latter.

Postmaster James A. Farley and Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation also were callers.

There is every sign that Mr. Roosevelt is going to see to it first that the American house has been put in order before he goes into any agreements abroad for currency stabilization or tariff revision.

House To House Drive Of 250 NRA Workers Begins In City Today

Will Seek To Enlist All Consumers To Patronize Blue Eagle Stores—To Check Up on Merchants Not Yet Under Blue Eagle.

A drive in which every home and every business in Kingston would be canvassed to enlist their support in the NRA was begun today. Some 250 women volunteer workers commenced a house to house canvass to enlist the support of Kingston consumers to pledge them to patronize and support Blue Eagle merchants. Simultaneously a squad of men volunteer workers will cover the city to check how many employers have not as yet signed the President's Reemployment Agreement. After this list is compiled these employers shall be visited to learn why they have not as yet signed.

Mrs. Howard Lewis of the Ulster County NRA committee in a statement issued today from the NRA headquarters, said: "Bankers and industrialists, thinking business men, are supporting the NRA program because they know the only other alternative is chaos.

"The workers are supporting the NRA because it means an opportunity to earn a decent living wage. They know too, that shorter hours will put more of their fellow workers back to work.

"The man in the street, the average citizen, is supporting this great movement because he knows that a return of prosperity can be achieved only by unified action, leadership and universal cooperation.

"The women of the nation will contribute tremendously to the return of prosperous conditions, to the reemployment of millions and the restoration of buying power. Women are the purchasing agents of families. Their influence is enormous. Therefore I call upon the women of this community to support the NRA."

Colonel Walter Donnarumma in a statement also issued from the local NRA headquarters said "It has come to our attention that a great many employers have signed the President's reemployment agreement but are slow in adjusting the hours and wage scales. The purpose of this so-called 'Blanket Code' was to put temporarily into effect those agreements which the employer signed and towhic h he pledged himself. Some are using for an excuse that they are waiting for their code to be submitted. That is altogether wrong. Of course we realize that some are doing this unknowingly, some intentionally. Our advice to those employers is that they clear their doubts by visiting the NRA headquarters and learn their definite status. No employer in Kingston wants to hide behind the Blue Eagle. Our community is too small to permit that. An employer who is treating his employes unfairly will soon be exposed. And remember public opinion is a powerful weapon."

INFANTILE PARALYSIS BLAMED FOR TWO DEATHS

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP).—Infantile paralysis today was blamed by Buffalo City Hospital officials as the cause of the deaths of two Niagara Falls girls about a week ago.

The girls, Geraldine Rudd, four, and her two year old sister, Barbara, were stricken August 16, and four days later the younger child died. The older girl, believed on the road to recovery, died the next day. Unable to classify the disease, which caused death, Niagara Falls physicians sought the aid of city hospital doctors.

Dr. Walter S. Gooddale, superintendent of the hospital, announced last night that on the basis of an examination of the organs of Geraldine, he was convinced poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, caused death. He said further tests are being made to confirm his conclusion but he was satisfied that the disease had been properly diagnosed.

THREE KILLED, FOUR SAVED IN AIRPLANE MISHAPS

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP).—Three persons were killed in a Sunday airplane crash in this area and the lives of four others were saved in another crash only by the skill of the pilot.

At Bath a plane piloted by Donald Macornic, 28, of Rochester, struck a high tension wire as he attempted to land, and hurled the pilot and his two passengers to their death. The passengers were Paul Parrish, 50, an inmate of the Bath Soldiers' Home, and Bernard Clark, 17, of Avoca.

Harold Jackson, another Rochester pilot, saved his own life and the lives of his three passengers at Hornell when he successfully performed a dead stick landing after being signalled from another plane that his oleo strut was broken.

More Organizations Join Huge Parade of NRA This Thursday

Parade Will March from Strand to Uptown Section Then Return to City Hall to Officially Raise NRA Banner Over the City.

That Kingston is enthusiastic and heartily in accord with the NRA parade and demonstration to be held on Thursday afternoon starting at 2 o'clock on the Strand and passing up Broadway to uptown and returning to the City Hall where the NRA banner will be officially raised over the City of Kingston is manifested by the increasing number of local organizations informing the committee in charge of participation.

To insure an orderly and balanced parade Fire Chief Joseph Murphy again calls to the attention of all who are to participate to communicate with him so that they shall be definitely placed in the parade line-up. With stirring music, colorful floats decorated in the NRA spirit, marchers representing workers, consumers and professional life and other novelties and surprises it is expected that this patriotic demonstration shall be one of unsurpassed brilliance.

Float Chairman Morris Samter requests all who are to sponsor floats to communicate with him calling 2052. Already a large number of floats have been entered.

Music Chairman Paul Zucca promises plenty of good music appropriate to the occasion.

Many organizations in this community are holding meetings this evening to make parade plans. Again the committee invites and also expects all to wholeheartedly cooperate.

The committee shall meet Tuesday afternoon in the office of the Mayor at 4:30.

Four Kingston Men Invade "The Jungle"

They Were Laden With a Gallon of Rum and the Spirit of Adventure—The Spirit Was Quenched by the Arrival of the Police, But the Contents of the Jug Had Disappeared.

Late Sunday afternoon four Kingston men who gave their names to the police as John Miller, 44, Joseph McCann, 27, James Jones, 48, and Casper Cahill, 45, stirred by the spirit of adventure, laded themselves with a gallon of alleged rum and invaded "the Jungle" as the hobo camp along the Ulster & Delaware railroad tracks near the Washington avenue viaduct is known, and shortly after their arrival in the jungle the contents of the jug had been consumed and neighbors living in the vicinity of the camp telephoned into police headquarters complaining of the loud revelry that prevailed in the hobo camp where they said a free for all fight was in progress.

Officers Barmann and Relyea were sent to the camp and in addition to the four local residents arrested James Sullivan, 52, of Yonkers; Joseph Burke, 34, of New York; John Sweeney, 45, of New York; Thomas Walsh, 45, of Brooklyn; George Kelity, 38, of New York, and Thomas O'Dea of Chambers, Mass.

All ten men were charged with disorderly conduct and eight of them were lodged in jail over night. Jones furnished $25 cash bail for his appearance in court today and Cahill was paroled in the custody of an attorney.

This morning Jones failed to appear and Judge Culloton forfeited the $25 cash bail. Cahill entered a plea of not guilty and had his hearing adjourned until later. The other eight were all fined $5 each.

Louis Roehl, 33, of Hurley, was arrested Saturday evening on a charge of public intoxication. The police received a telephone call from Abeel street that Roehl was attempting to start his automobile. When Officers Burger and Mahoney arrived Roehl had not succeeded in starting his car and thus escaped the lodging of a more serious charge against himself. He was fined $5 by Judge Chliston this morning in police court.

St. Louis Children Will Go To School

St. Louis, Aug. 28 (AP)—St. Louis children will tuck their books under their arms and go to school September 5, despite the epidemic of "sleeping sickness" which today had taken 39 lives and affected 265 patients.

Dr. Henry Gerling, superintendent of instruction said he found that comparatively few children had been attacked by encephalitis, and that even if the epidemic should spread further, the children would receive better protection from the malady in the schoolroom than in their homes.

Promise Surprises.

San Jose, Calif., Aug. 28 (AP)—A promise of surprise testimony by both the state and the defense was made today as the trial of David A. Moley Resigns From U. S. Post; Will Edit New National Weekly

President's Close Adviser Quits State Department — Secretary Hull's Differences With His Assistant Secretary Recalled.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP)—Raymond Moley, intimate of President Roosevelt and recent storm center of the administration, is going to edit a new national weekly to be published by Vincent Astor, another friend and distant relatives of the chief executive.

The sudden retirement of the Columbia University professor and close adviser of the President, was announced yesterday after a heart to heart talk between the two.

The first break in the official family of the President followed closely an almost open rupture in the state department between Secretary Hull and Moley, the assistant secretary.

Mr. Roosevelt is very friendly to both Moley and Hull and all those involved say everything is all right. Certainly there is no break in the friendship between the President and Moley, who has been the key of his group of advisers during the last two years.

"I need not tell you," said Mr. Roosevelt in his letter accepting Moley's resignation, "that I appreciate and shall always remember your participation during these two years in the development of policies based on our common ideals. You have rendered a very definite service to your country; and your departure from an official position to undertake an editorship will give you opportunity to carry on the task in an equally wide field."

Moley was just as sincere in his letter of resignation which makes his retirement from office effective on September 7.

Of the new Astor-Moley publication, Astor, who was also at the summer White House yesterday said in a formal statement: "As we see it, there is now, as surely never before, a wide and useful field for a free, impartial, and vivid interpretation each week of the momentous changes taking place in our American life. There is also the need of a vehicle for the expression of those ideas and proposals that will tend to direct these forces along planned and progressive channels. To supply such a medium, dedicated to truly American ideals, we shall do our utmost."

The departure of Moley from official service follows an interesting series of events. Moley was the lone man who accompanied Roosevelt to the White House last winter when President Hoover asked for a conference on war debts.

When Mr. Roosevelt took office, he was made assistant secretary of state. He consulted frequently at the White House. The London economic conference came along. Secretary Hull headed the American delegation. Moley went over as a special messenger for the President. Something happened over there that brought the differences of opinion between Hull and Moley to a climax.

The President of course, stood by his secretary of state. Upon his return Moley was transferred to a special assignment to study kidnaping and racketeering. He has been on that study for three weeks and separated from the state department.

Moley is 46 years old and a native of Berea, Ohio. Showing an early predilection for public life, he became superintendent of schools at Olmstead Falls, Ohio, at the age of 20, and not long after that was mayor.

He got his Ph.D. from Oberlin College in 1913 and after serving as assistant professor at Western Reserve University, he went to Columbia University in 1923 as professor of government and public law at Barnard College. He has made crime surveys for several states and written several books.

Louis McHenry Howe, the President's long-time friend and secretary, is said to have "discovered" Moley and brought him and Mr. Roosevelt together. He is married and the father of twin sons.

SEEK "HIT-RUN" DRIVER WHO KILLED 3 PEOPLE

Middleburg, N. Y., Aug. 28. (AP).—Garages and filling stations in the capital district have been asked to watch for a car with a broken headlight which drove into a mother and her four children, killing her and two of the children.

Anna Kennedy, 18 months old, died today a few hours after Mrs. Ziva Kennedy, 35, and Beatrice Kennedy, 10, had been hurled off the Schoharie-Middleburg highway. Two sons of Mrs. Kennedy were not hurt.

Officers found pieces of headlight glass from a small motor car at the scene of the accident and thus sought a car with a damaged headlight.

The "hit and run" driver never reduced his speed after tearing into the family. All of the victims died of fractured skulls.

Drowned In Hudson River At Glasco

Saugerties Man Was Said To Have Complained of Feeling Dizzy Before Entering The Water—Was Not an Expert Swimmer.

Charles Grant, 35, of Saugerties, an employe of Dr. J. G. Grimley of that village, was drowned in the Hudson river Saturday about 1:45 o'clock at Glasco. About an hour and a half later the body was recovered by Jerry Mayone and Louis Bruno who with Percy Briody of Glasco and officer Harold Mills of the Saugerties police force had been grappling for the body. Dr. Grimley who examined the body after it had been recovered pronounced death due to drowning caused by gastric disturbances from entering the water too soon after eating.

At the time James McGonala and Partick McKeating of Saugerties were with Grant. Grant had eaten dinner about 12:45 o'clock and before entering the water he complained of feeling dizzy. However he waded out in the river and evidently struck a deep place for he disappeared as he preceded his companions in the water. The two men with him made efforts to recover the body but failed.

Coroner W. N. Connor was notified as was Deputy Sheriff Abram Molyneaux and Officer Mills of the Saugerties police force.

After an examination by Dr. Grimley death was pronounced due to drowning. Coroner Connor, who went to the scene, when the body had been recovered gave a verdict of accidental drowning and turned the body over to Undertaker Joseph Keenan of Saugerties.

Grant was not an expert swimmer.

Woman Found Dead of Heart Trouble In Auto

Believed Excitement Caused by Flood Resulted in Death of Mrs. Anna Burne Near Pine Grove House in Woodland Valley.

Mrs. Anna Burne, 42, of 117 Little Neck Road, Great Neck, L. I., was found dead of heart trouble in her automobile near the Pine Grove House in Woodland Valley Saturday afternoon. Discovery of the body was made by her husband who found her slumped over the wheel of the car. For some time she had been under treatment for heart trouble and it is thought that the excitement caused by the recent flood conditions in the valley were instrumental in causing her death at this time.

Mrs. Burne and her husband had been stopping at the Pine Grove House for the past couple of days since their camp in Woodland Valley was caught in the flood which extended throughout the valley last Thursday. Earlier in the day Mr. Burne had walked over to their camping place and Mrs. Burne started out to drive her car over about 2:30 o'clock that afternoon. She experienced some trouble in getting her car started and the car became mired in the mud. Some time later her husband returned to the car and found his wife dead. Dr. C. H. Quinn of Phoenicia was called and pronounced her dead.

Coroner W. N. Conner was notified and made an investigation and the body was turned over to Undertaker H. Lee Breithaupt of Phoenicia.

Mr. Burne is manager of the Great Neck branch of the Cadillac Motor Car Company.

The accident happened on the Maverick Road about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. The Goldstein car, which was being driven toward Woodstock, contained besides the driver Leon Kaplan, who also lives on the Maverick Road.

The Hupmobile had both left fenders smashed and lost a hub cap. The Ford had a damaged left front wheel. The sheriff's office was notified and Deputy Clayton Vredenbergh made an investigation.

New Assistant Manager.

J. P. Harkins of New York city has assumed his duties as assistant manager at the local Montgomery Ward and Company store on Fair street.

Bertrand Levy, 13 years old, of 1302 DeKalb avenue, Brooklyn, who had been attending a camp at Rifton, lost his life in the flood waters up Woodland Valley last Thursday afternoon while he and others of a party of 11 children and two camp counselors attempted to make their way across a log over a swollen stream. The drowning was on the Valsar Hollow stream, a mere brook in ordinary times but a raging torrent on Thursday. Young Levy slipped off the log after two of the party had made the trip in safety. He clung to the log for a few seconds but before aid could be given him he was swept into the stream and disappeared from view immediately. His body was recovered Saturday about noon by Claude Yerry of Woodland Valley, who was one of a searching party.

Word of the drowning was not received until late Friday night when it became known in Phoenicia that there had been a drowning up Woodland Valley. This word was received after the party had made their way back over the mountain trails over Wittenberg mountain, Cornell Mountain and Slide Mountain and back to civilization at Winnisook and then down the Oliverea valley. Even then it was with difficulty that word of the tragedy reached Phoenicia as lines of communication were cut off by washed out highways and damaged bridges which carried down wires and delayed communication.

A party of nine boys and two girls under supervision of Richard Fernback and Eleanor Heyman, camp counselors, had gone on a mountain hike up Wittenberg and over to Slide Mountain when the storm overtook them Wednesday. The return trip from Slide Mountain was started. The party came back over Wittenberg and down the trail into Woodland Valley where they found the trail cut off by rushing water.

Small mountain streams which had been but brooks when they went up the mountain trail were now rushing torrents. Night came on and unable to get to any house or shelter the party remained in the open Wednesday night. The campers' ages were about 13 and throughout the night the counselors had difficulty in calming their young charges.

Thursday morning with daylight they started out to find a means of getting across the Woodland Valley stream and back to some hamlet or shelter. Three men in the locality told them of a log across the Valsar Hollow stream some distance up stream and they started up Valsar Hollow to find the place.

After some time they came on the Valsar Hollow creek and located the log over the stream. It was a raging torrent and along the bank of the stream there had formed a jam. An attempt was made to cross over the log. Two of the boys, Walter Perlmutter and Philip Dia Mont crossed in safety and then Bertrand Levy started across. He had made part of the trip in safety when he suddenly slipped from the log and fell into the stream. For a time he clung to the log but the swift current carried him away before help could be given him. Fernback attempted to get to the lad but before he could reach him the water had swept him away.

Another night was spent in the woods and Friday with the water dropping the lads and their counselors decided to retrace their steps over the mountains to Slide and down the Winnisook trail to Winnisook and down the Oliverea valley. They made the trip with much difficulty after their two nights in the open and suffering from exposure and lack of food they finally gained shelter in the Oliverea valley.

From there Fernback made his way down to Phoenicia and late Friday evening word of the drowning was given Trooper Mahoney at Phoenicia and a searching party was immediately made up. This party started out immediately but the hikers unfamiliar with the locality were unable to tell just where the drowning had taken place.

Darkness forced the rescue party to turn back and again Saturday morning the party started out. Some of the lads recognized their former trail Saturday by daylight and the rescue party was led to the Valsar Valley stream where the attempt to cross had been made over the log. In the searching party was Trooper Mahoney, D. R. Hillson, forest ranger, Walter Ludwig, Claude Yerry and several other volunteers.

The place where the lads attempted to cross the stream is off the main Woodland Valley stream and up the Valsar Hollow beyond Dr. Snyder's place.

Shortly before noon Yerry came on the body about 500 feet from where the body had gone into the water. The body was taken to Phoenicia to the undertaking parlors of H. Lee Breithaupt and Dr. Quinn of Phoenicia was called. Coroner W. N. Conner was also notified and went to the scene and conducted an in-

Tea Plant Is a Tree

The tea plant is really a tree and left to itself would grow to a height of 30 to 50 feet, but scientific pruning keeps it to an average of three feet. This makes the young leaves and shoots more compact and accessible. The plants are perennial and the leaves are picked every 7 or 12 days throughout the year. The quality is determined by the part of the bush that is picked. That which is chosen from the buds and tips is called "flowery." If young leaves are included it is orange pekoe. Then as subordinate in value, come pekoe, souchong, congou and dust.

Thunder Birds

The Shama thrush is frequently referred to as thunder bird in India because it seems happiest when a thunderstorm is in progress. But he sings his sweetest songs when he is coaxing for meal worms in low, wheedling tones—though not for long. If the reward is not forthcoming as soon as he thinks it should be, he changes to a harsher, more demanding note.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Philadelphia, Aug. 28 (AP).—A code for family errand boys is 16-year-old Morton Sorkin's idea of the next big forward step the NRA could take. He wrote to General Hugh S. Johnson, instead of going on strike, and asked "Is there no code for errand boys of my type?" Morton thinks he should be paid at least five cents a day, time and a half for over time, work from noon to 6 p. m. and not more than 25 hours a week.

Chicago—Alimony in Illinois can continue after the death of the payer.

The Promise

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Christopher Columbus Crow had discovered Rip in the dog pound.

"I'll hurry back and tell Willy Nilly so you will be saved in time," the Crow cawed.

"Oh, please hurry," Rip urged. "I don't know what is going to happen to me. Some people are coming around to pick out a few of these dogs as pets, but I don't want to live anywhere else. And a number of the other dogs who haven't any homes will be painlessly put out of the way so that their troubles will be over.

"But I want to live as I'm anything but a homeless dog. Only I do want my home.

"There are some other dogs who will be claimed by their owners if their licenses are paid. Please hurry, hurry, hurry. I don't know what may happen."

"I won't waste another moment," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow, "but will fly in a straight line right back to Puddle Muddle."

The dogs in the pound all told their life histories to one another. Rip had become a great favorite and they did hope that help would reach him before anything happened.

Christopher reached Puddle Muddle cawing at the top of his Crow voice: "I have found Rip. He is in the dog pound, but if we're to get him out we must pay for his license."

"There is no time to waste!" cried Willy Nilly, the little gnome-like man. And at once he hurried into his automobile Two-Ways and all the animals piled in too. "We'll have to get the dog catcher's promise to wait until we can pay. We must get that promise!"

Maverick Concert Proves Delightful

"Beauty" was pre-eminently the keynote of the concert at the Maverick Theatre on Sunday afternoon, when music lovers were privileged to listen to a concert such as has never before been played in this vicinity and is rarely heard in this country. The announcement of a Cello Quartet is of itself surprising and stimulating. When there is added to that the roster of four such master-players on this lovely instrument, as Horace Britt, Engelbert Roentgen, Cmsip Giskin and Louis Meltzer, expectation must run high.

Looking down a long retrospect of music, the quartet transported the audience to the simple, sincere, reverent and art-loving days of the seventeenth century, opening the program with a group of two numbers with entirely different content. There was rare melodic beauty in the Aria di Chiesa by Stradella (1645-1682). The beauty of harmony made its appeal in the Adgio e Allegro by Marcello (1686-1739), as played by Mr. Roentgen, Mr. Giskin and Mr. Britt. In the quiet and beneficent spirit of this music of long ago, there fell upon the intently listening audience that filled the theatre, a sense of rest and disassociation from "things" and turmoil and hubbub. The audience paid quite as high a tribute to the music and the musicians in their absolute silence as they did in their enthusiastically appreciative applause.

All of life had grown richer and more colorful and varied in the Suite for four cellos, Op. 94 by Emanuel Moor which was played by Mr. Britt, Mr. Roentgen, Mr. Giskin and Mr. Meltzer. The opening Andante sostenuto gave the audience its first taste of the incomparable beauty of a quartet of cellos whose four voices held one in a grip of beautiful tone and musical thought. The Molto Allegro was gay and tripping in character. There was something of the infinite in the Adagio. The Suite came to a close with an Allegro con brio, that pictured haste as in flight not in hurry, and through the entire Suite there was always that beauty of tone and color that only music can produce.

Up to this point in the afternoon's music, there had been noticed through the open spaces of Hervy White's "window tree" a soft movement of green leaves in the clear sunlight.

As Mr. Giskin, Mr. Roentgen and Mr. Britt, played the first notes of the two movements from the Beethoven Trio, opus 87, even the leaves ceased moving and an even deeper hush fell upon the listeners, throughout the Adagio, that held in it something of the very heart of the Creator of the universe, whom Beethoven worshipped. It was profoundly beautiful. Though less serious, the Allegro molto scherzando, was not less lovely and after a moments tribute of silence the applause came in a burst of appreciation.

Requiem by David Popper, the preeminent cello composer, played by Mr. Britt, Mr. Giskin and Mr. Meltzer with Mr. Roentgen at the piano would of itself have placed Popper among the "Great Composers."

Nothing more tender and exquisite could be imagined than Nana by Manuelo de Falla, and the audience would not be denied an encore. The artists, Mr. Britt, Mr. Roentgen, Mr. Giskin and Mr. Meltzer graciously repeated this bit of beautifully human music.

Finally in the dizzy, dashing Granadina by Joaquin Nin, the quartet brought their audience back to the life of today along a way that will carry through the years of active living to come, an arresting and refreshing memory of the beauty of the afternoon of music made possible by beauty loving Hervy White at his Maverick Theatre in the quiet recesses of leafy trees and summer skies.

Though conscious of the well-nigh insurmountable technical difficulties of the music, those who attended this concert, will far longer remember with gratitude the beauty of the music of four celios played by four artists than their technical achievements, great though they were.

The program of next Sunday's concert will be announced shortly.

Traffic Resumed As Far As Phoenicia

Sunday traffic over the Mountain Division of the New York Central was resumed as far as Phoenicia. Between Mt. Pleasant and Phoenicia much of the track was flooded and considerable damage was done to the road-bed of the former U. & D. Railroad. In one place the road-bed was swept away for several hundred feet and a new track has been laid around the washout. The Phoenicia yards are in bad condition and above Phoenicia there is much track out. A large gang of men are at work rushing the job.

New Road Closed Since Heavy Rain

The new concrete on the Ellenville-Wawarsing road, from near the Wawarsing bridge to the top of the hill near the Jewish cemetery, has been closed to travel, the old road again being used. This section of the road was badly washed at the sides by the recent heavy rain, deep gullies running through the sand shoulders to the edge of the concrete.

Travel is still being detoured through the village of Napanoch, starting at the Napanoch bridge and striking the new concrete near the Nordland House. Travelers who are being forced to bump over this old stretch of road would not mind it quite so much of a little care was taken to fix the approach at either end so that it could be used without danger of breaking a spring.

Premier Wood Destroyer

The termite is the world's premier wood destroyer. The damage it does to wooden buildings in the United States alone is estimated at around $40,000,000 a year. No other insect or animal approaches it in damage to wooden property. Almost every sort of wood is attacked by it. Some woods are more or less resistant, but the only two termite-proof woods known are the teak of India and the poisonous manzanillit of the Virgin Islands. The annual damage to wooden buildings in termite-infested areas is estimated at 1 per cent every year.

When Windows Were Taxed

Bricked-in windows in many of the old houses in England are a reminder of the time when all windows were taxed. The tax was introduced in the reign of William III in order to defray the cost of the recoinage of silver. Many people objected to paying the tax, and it was to lessen the amount which could be demanded that they caused some of their windows to be bricked in. The tax remained in existence until 1851, when it was replaced by the inhabited house duty.

NEED FOR CLAWS

The Blue Eagle has claws. That is the intimation in recent utterances of Administrator Johnson, aggressive head of national recovery drive. Businesses which display the blue eagle insignia without having signed agreements are in for trouble. So are businesses which fail to keep to the intent, written and implied, of the code. So, according to General Johnson, is anyone withdrawing the blue eagle from his place of business.

The flood of signed agreements continues. Even though there must be a good deal of readjustment before certain businesses will be able to make NRA principles work, either under the blue eagle or in a trade code, there is almost unanimous sentiment in favor of Administration procedure, with promises to do everything possible to help.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute, in a recent bulletin, offers the interesting possibility that the greatest stumbling block in the way of a blanket code may be excessive taxation. High taxes, according to the Institute, are now causing the abnormal and dangerous spread between wages and prices. No matter how patriotic a business man is, he cannot raise wages and increase operating costs without sufficient additional revenue coming in. Hope of the government is that increased revenue will immediately follow the blanket code's operation.

Labor troubles likewise confront the NRA. Main center of disturbance is in Pennsylvania coal fields where state troops have been called out and many mines shut down. A. F. of L. is conducting one of the greatest organization drives in its history; many employers are attempting to stick with the open shop or company union plan. Strikes and lockouts, if they spread, will be a tremendous blow to NRA success; official pleas to labor to cooperate have been made by the government.

FROZEN ASSETS

American commercial and savings banks by thousands have gotten into trouble because they accepted real estate mortgages, and thus froze their depositors' money. Likewise building and loan companies by thousands have gotten into trouble because they accepted bank deposits, lending them on mortgages, and then couldn't repay them on demand.

These classes of financial institutions are evidently going to be separated clearly hereafter in the United States, as they have long been in most other countries. Federal legislation already enacted, with more to follow next winter, is expected to separate our commercial and savings banks and restrict each of them to its special functions more clearly than ever before. The states will wrestle with the mortgage and loan problem, if the federal government does not.

It seems natural now, in some states, for the mortgage and loan company to do a general banking business. But this has been done only since 1868. Ohio, which started the practice, is now trying to abolish it with a new law which, by forbidding building and loan companies to receive deposits of any kind, would force them to become mutual stock companies. We shall hear more of this old-new policy.

THE BIG FOUR

It is unfortunate that the Big Four of American industry, Steel, Coal, Oil and Motors, have delayed and dodged so long in preparing their working codes. They have done this either from genuine inability to agree, or from a feeling that they were so powerful that they could beat the government and have their own way by holding out. It goes without saying that any industrial leaders holding the latter view are mistaken. The government is supreme, determined and in command of the situation. NRA takes orders from no industry or group of industries.

It is more charitable, and probably more accurate, to accept the former view. And where conflicting interests prevent an industry from achieving unity in itself and fitting into the national recovery scheme, some outside power must step in and do the job for it. This is necessary, in the present case, not merely for the sake of the country, but for the sake of the industries themselves.

In wielding a big stick to force rebellious fractions of these industries into line, or in sweeping aside unsatisfactory compromise codes and proceeding to write the codes itself, NRA under its stern administrator is doing these big industries a favor. Their most enlightened leaders probably recognize the fast and secretly welcome the intervention.

FOOD AND WORK

During the World War, nations found it necessary to conserve their food resources, and experiments were conducted to learn just how much food an individual needed to do his mental and physical work properly.

The Nutrition Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution conducted experiments which gave very interesting information.

Balanced or "all around" diets were used. One squad of ten subjects received 3,000 calories (heat units) of food daily, the other only 1,800 calories, through a period of two months.

Mental addition showed the full ration squad to gain through practice double their accuracy in the first month, while the reduced ration squad had increased their accuracy only half at the end of two months. The reduced ration squad, also, made fifty per cent more errors than the full ration squad at the end of the second month.

Similar differences in memory appeared between the two squads, but the reduced ration squad actually "went back" in the memory test, during the course of the second month.

Using the tuning fork, and also sensitiveness to electric currents, showed the reduced ration squad had gone backward.

In commenting on these brain tests, Dr. Donald C. Laird, Colgate University, believes that it is the better general physical condition of the full ration squad that gives them the superiority rather than any real damage to the brain of the reduced ration squad.

What about the physical or body tests?

In a "steadiness" test made by tracing with a pencil between two parallel lines, the squad on reduced rations, not only made more mistakes, but showed less improvement in two months practice than the full ration squad did in the first month.

Strength of grip was decreased eight per cent by the reduced diet, the left hand being more affected than the right.

Speed of eye movement was reduced five per cent in the reduced diet group.

Finger movement was also reduced in the reduced diet group.

What do these experiments teach us?

They teach us that the body can adjust itself so that life is not endangered by the reduced diet, but it can readily be seen that mental and physical ability are certainly lessened.

The HIDDEN DOOR

BY FRANK L. PACKARD

SYNOPSIS: Colin Brooke, mystery writer, is accusing New York diagnosed as Clarke Lunn, a crook, for a trace of the Mask. The Mask is one of the underworld, and besides has threatened Colin's life. Butch Conrad has tipped Colin off to the fact that Captain Dollaire, rum runner who ruled the Mask's counterfeiting plant on the St. Lawrence river, is in New York, at Spinelli's night club. A supposedly drunk man at Spinelli's bar has described Dollaire and Heimie Schwarm, to whom Dollaire hopes to sell a cargo of rum. The "drunk" is one of Butch's men.

Chapter 31

ENTER HEIMIE

THE barkeep was back. He grinned at Colin as the "drunk" lurched away.

"What's his name?" asked Colin.

"Peter K. MacBride." The barkeep's grin broadened. "Didn't he wish a card on you?"

Colin shook his head.

"No. Have I been neglected?"

"We sweep 'em up off the floor in the morning," confided the barkeep with a laugh. "He carries a pocketful around with him. But he's all right when he's sober. Got a bit of money, so they say—retired—or something."

"Well, I think I'll blow," smiled Colin. "When he comes back tell him I had a telephone call."

He swung away from the bar, left the room, and began to make his way downstairs. Peter K. MacBride, whatever his real name might be, was obviously one of Butch's "inside" men—a "feeder" for the gang. And MacBride's warning was ringing in his ears.

How much, or how little, MacBride already knew, or whether the man had only "sensed" something in the air, mattered little. That, in MacBride's words, hell would bust loose here before the night was over, was exactly what he, Colin, was expecting—and he was quite sure in his own mind that he could have told MacBride why!

His own plans? He had none—except to watch Dollaire and be guided by circumstances. Dollaire was the bait. His, Colin's, job was to see who snatched at it!

Colin reached the entrance to the dance hall and paused for a moment in the doorway amongst what seemed the ever-present knot of people who stood there peering in. A "turn" was on. He had seen it before. A girl was covering the floor with prodigious leaps and bounds—but very little covered the girl. Spinelli called it his psychic dance.

COLIN'S eyes roamed around the room—and came to rest almost immediately on Heimie Schwarm, whom he identified without hesitation from MacBride's description. At the table beside the booze baron was a stocky, powerfully built, black-haired man — Dollaire, of course.

They were sitting, as MacBride had said, in one of the "stalls" near the door, a bottle of champagne between them. Colin smiled cryptically. Spinelli never overlooked a bet that meant a little extra profit.

The "stalls" were nothing more than railed-off spaces on a slightly raised platform that was built around three sides of the room, but they possessed comfortable lounge chairs and the view was better, so why should not a small fee be charged for their use? Spinelli charged it. But they were popular. Most of them were occupied tonight.

Colin moved forward into the room. He contented himself with a table on the floor level not far from the booze baron's stall—he could watch Dollaire, not only unobtrusively, but much better from here than from a stall.

Again his eyes roamed around the room. The tables, three deep, that separated the space reserved for dancing from the stalls were fairly well occupied too. Spinelli would be able to declare a dividend tonight!

He ordered a bottle of wine, and sipped it leisurely. Applause greeted several suggestive numbers on Spinelli's programme. Colin saw little of them. The minutes and the quarter-hours slipped by. Heimie Schwarm and Dollaire had become a little uproarious, though not offensively so.

Had the deal been perfected? Had Heimie Schwarm become the owner of a choice cargo from St. Pierre and Miquelon? It mattered little. They were attacking another bottle of champagne. Heimie Schwarm had paid for it from a huge wad of bills that he had wrenched, because of its bulk, with no little difficulty from his pocket.

THE Dutchman's combination of straw hair, brilliant red tie, and inch-square checked suit of light fawn as a color scheme struck a distinctly jarring note. Dollaire, swarthy, beetle-browed, narrow-eyed, with thin, hard lips and protruding jaw, was the reverse of being prepossessing.

And then, as he watched the two, a fine point of ethics arose in Colin's mind to trouble him. Believing that Dollaire was in immediate danger, had he any right to sit here and not warn the man? Mentally he began to debate the pros and cons.

What could he say to Dollaire? Nothing definite—but enough, say, to cause Dollaire to take alarm and leave the place. Well, what then? If the Mask had Dollaire under surveillance here, Dollaire would be no better off outside than in.

Dollaire had gratuitously thrown his hat into the ring. He had destroyed one of the Mask's pet schemes, and had murdered at least two—for Lazarre might still be alive—of the Mask's men. If Colin knew the Mask at all, Dollaire, whether he were put on the spot here or elsewhere, was a doomed man from the night he had raided the club on the Cascade River.

Dollaire was a callous, cold-blooded murderer — boasting his prowess. One's finer instincts revolted even at the thought of his existence. Warn Dollaire? If the Mask or any of his men were here to see, then Clarkie Lunn might as well never have been created. He had not come here to warn Dollaire; he had come here to watch the Mask play his hand.

There were Germaine, himself, their future, his own life at stake. Ethics! His lips tightened. Was it ethics to fling all that aside on the chance of being able to accomplish what, at the utmost, could be no more than a postponement of the inevitable showdown between the Mask and Dollaire?

Suppose he were writing it? Angrily he sought to fling the sudden intrusion aside—but it persisted. One always had to justify the hero's actions. Would the hero be justified in the readers' eyes if he stood pat under these circumstances?

"By God," Colin stated fiercely to himself, "I'd write it that way, anyhow!"

A waiter stood at his elbow.

"Pardon me, sir. There's a couple of gentlemen over there that would like you to join them."

Tomorrow, Colin meets an exceedingly dangerous former acquaintance.

STROKES OF GENIUS

by SAMUEL HOPKINS & ALFRED PARKER

The MOSQUE of SANTA SOPHIA

"ONE OF THE FOREMOST CHURCHES OF CHRISTENDOM IN THE HANDS OF THE MOSLEMS!

WHEN two architects conceived the daring idea of mounting a round dome on a square building, the Church of Santa Sophia in Constantinople came into existence. The architects were Isodorus of Miletus and Anthemius of Tralles, and the church (which is better known as Agya Sophia, from the Greek words meaning "Holy Wisdom") was ordered by the Emperor Justinian. It was begun in 532 A.D. and was dedicated on Christmas Day, 538. Its walls are richly carved, and its interior is decorated with vividly colored glass mosaics on a gold background.

In the 15th century the Turks conquered Constantinople. Santa Sophia, which had been the center of eastern Christianity, was converted into a mosque and has been a Mohammedan place of worship ever since.

Twenty years after its completion the church was shaken by an earthquake. The heavy dome fell and was replaced by a higher one. For 1300 years earthquakes and the cannonadings of armies struggling over Constantinople have kept the dome literally trembling on its legs, requiring constant repair and reinforcement.

Isolated But Happy Says C.C.C. Member

209th Co. C. C. C.,
Tompkins Corners, N. Y.
Aug. 24, 1933.

Editor, Kingston Freeman,
Kingston, New York.
Dear Sir:

Inasmuch as some of the Kingston boys are at this camp I feel that your readers would be interested in learning something of our camp.

We are located in Fahnstacke Memorial Park, which is about five miles northwest of Tompkins Corners. Our camp site is on the top of a mountain with hundreds of rocks in and around the camp. We were forced to use kerosene lamps the first few weeks up here but now we have electric lights and shower baths with hot and cold water! We had an entertainment last week by some of the girls (and oh, what girls!) from Peekskill, chaperoned by Father Walsh who proved to be a regular fellow.

We are working on Route 301, about 10 miles north of Cold Spring, building a dam. We have to clear 65 acres of trees, trim them, and cut them up in four foot lengths. The work, while hard at first to most of the men, has become somewhat easier as they have toughened up.

Among the celebrities of the camp we have Joe De Foe, former Golden Glove bantamweight champion of 1932 who is showing the boys how to box.

Although we have it pretty tough up here due to us being in such an isolated spot we have excellent meals, due no doubt to our efficient mess officer, Lieut. Stevenson, who is well liked by the men and a credit to the Army. While on the subject of officers, Capt. Lackett, our "skipper" should not be forgotten. He commands the respect and admiration of every man in the camp. Our acting first sergeant Sgt. Zabrosky, also deserves great credit in helping the men in every possible way.

Among the Kingston boys at camp we must say a few words about Joe Guido who always is last up in the morning but somehow always manages to be first on line for breakfast. Last night we had a terrific storm which climaxed eight days of steady rain. The boys prayed for rain and now they're praying for the sun, even if it means go back to work!

I would like to write more about the camp and life in the C. C. C. but as it is near 10 p. m. and lights will go out shortly I must close thanking you beforehand for your kindness in publishing this. I am,

Sincerely yours,

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Shifting of Sumner Welles from his desk at the state department as assistant secretary to Cuba as ambassador and then back again to his former post is something to spur speculation.

JEFFERSON CAFFERY

It may be that there'll be more of this sort of thing as the Roosevelt administration progresses with its foreign policy in the countries to the south.

Welles is to be relieved shortly at Havana by Jefferson Caffery, who served as assistant secretary of state, while he was about the task of calming the political waters in the island republic.

That the combination worked well, in state department eyes, is apparent. And now Ambassador Welles, with plaudits still hailing his accomplishments in Havana, will turn over the duty of finishing the job to Caffery, a career diplomat hand-picked by the department as "exactly the type of man needed in Cuba at the present time."

Eyes On Montevideo

WELLES' first duty back in the United States will be to start laying the foundation for the Pan-American conference which will be held in Montevideo in December.

The Roosevelt administration is counting much on the success of this conference. So important is it regarded, in fact, that Secretary Hull himself may head the American delegation.

THE administration hopes to get off to a good start at Montevideo in launching the promised reciprocal trade agreements between this country and Latin-America promised by Mr. Roosevelt during the campaign.

Furtherance of what the President chooses to call his "good neighbor" policy will come in for much consideration as well.

In all of which Welles is expected to play a vital part. His desk at the state department may be vacant at frequent intervals in the future while our foreign policy in the south develops.

Keeping 'Em Happy

INSIDERS at the state department these days are giving much credit to Under-Secretary Phillips for the smoothness and precision with which events in Latin America are moving.

Phillips, they say, has the career diplomats in a better frame of mind than they have been for many years. A career man himself, he knows and understands their problems.

Talk has it that Phillips was appointed under-secretary because the President felt that the routine of the department should be in the hands of an experienced career man. Secretary Hull does not and could not be expected to look after all the far-flung branches of the department.

That is Phillips' job. He is the executive officer of the state department—a job all its own.

SNAPPY MILK DRINKS

Here are more delicious and cooling milk drinks recommended by the Consumers Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. They can quench that summer thirst:

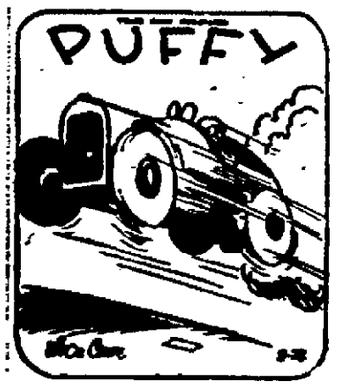
DASHBORD ELATION

Beat an egg with 3 ounces honey. Add to pint of milk. Mix thoroughly.

CHOCOLATE PICK-ME-UP

Add 2 or 3 tablespoons chocolate syrup or cocoa paste to 1 cup of milk. Add egg or egg white if desired. Sweeten to taste. Stir well. Serve in tall glass.

For additional milk drink recipes, write to the Consumers Information Service, State Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, for the booklet "Snappy Milk Drinks."



The track is red hot with the roar of his tires.
As Puffy, the speed bug, to glory aspires.
He and the Puffy are burning up space.
While trying to win in a swift auto race.

Kiddies And Canines To Vie For Honors

Ulster county kiddies and canines are among the entries in the Baby Beauty Show and Mutt Parade, respectively, at the 16th annual Community Outing of the Newburgh Chamber of Commerce at Delano Hitch Recreation Park, Newburgh, Wednesday, August 30, beginning at 5 p. m. The outing is staged as a free show by the Chamber of Commerce for the people of Newburgh and environs.

More than 150 babies will strive for the beauty prizes and nearly 100 dogs, whose eligibility is due to the fact that they have no pedigree, will "strut their stuff" in the Mutt Parade. Prizes valued at $150 will be distributed among the winners in the two events.

One of the attractions at the outing will be a motorcycle polo match between the champion Gotham Club of New York city and the Tigers of West New York. This will be the first time motorcycle polo will have been played in this part of the country. The game is very popular in England where it is called Motorcycle Soccer.

Frank Kurtz of the University of Michigan, national high point diving champion and Marshal Wayne of the University of Miami, national platform diving champion, will give an exhibition in the Annie Delano Hitch Memorial Pool, dedicated last year as a memorial to Mrs. Annie Deiano Hitch, President Roosevelt's aunt.

Bill Keen of Kingston will present his spectacular stunt of jumping two horses over an automobile while standing, Roman style, astride the mounts.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—David Manners, the lad whose picture career recently has initiated him into the life of the ancients, is no looking for stardom in pictures.

Instead, it appears he prefers a fair sample of success and enough leisure to work out his own ingenious scheme to beat the summer's heat. The weather and its vagaries, however, are only incidental to his real aim, the serious pursuit of a literary career.

Escape

It takes Manners two and one-half hours, the way he drives, to get away from it all—"it all" being Hollywood.

He goes to his high retreat in the mountains above Big Bear, where he is building a house. Up there, he says, it gets so hot that Hollywood by contrast, even on its dog days, seems a bit chilly, but warm or cool, the ranch is Manners' favorite spot in these parts.

It's a small and simple house, adobe style, with one bedroom—small, perhaps (although he didn't say so) to forestall week-end lavations of his hospitality by convivial Hollywood parties.

The house was planned around two large windows, looking out on majestic views, with space enough between for a writing table. Here is where Manners plans to finish the novel about a small Canadian town, a novel that has kept him busy these many months.

A Native New

He is one boy who has gone "western" with a flourish. He is going to New York soon for the first time in four years—he has kept that busy here—and one feature of the trip that fascinates him is "the anticipation of getting back."

In pictures he soon may be classified as an ancient. He played a Greek in "The Warrior's Husband" and now is learning how to crack the whip—an old Roman custom—for Eddie Cantor's picture.

William Candy, St. Louis sportsman, was spotted in a local ballroom and offered a movie part—that of speakeasy doorman. Asked how he liked it, Bill grinned: "Well, it's a very nice speakeasy and the kind of place where you meet only the best people."

Dance at Cottekill.

Cottekill, Aug. 28.—The Cottekill Volunteer Fire Company will hold another of its popular modern and old fashioned dances in the fire house, Tuesday evening, August 29. Dancing will be from nine to one to music furnished by the Pineola orchestra. The proceeds will apply on purchase price of the motorized chemical outfit which was recently purchased by the company. A very cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend. There is plenty of free parking place for cars.

Chicken Supper at Flatbush.

The ladies of the Flatbush Reformed Church will serve a chicken supper at the church hall on Wednesday evening, August 30, beginning at 6 o'clock. The menu will be chicken, mashed potatoes, gravy, sweet corn, tomatoes, cabbage salad, pickles, jelly, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake. The price will be moderate.

Almost 75 per cent of tax revenues in Kentucky are raised by state and local property taxes.

H. and R. Oil Company Now Under Blue Eagle

The H. & R. Oil Corporation, distributor for the Gulf Refining Company, gave notice of the fact that effective today, the office and distribution departments would go on a 40 hour work week. The employes of the company will work in accordance with the provisions of the oil code signed by President Roosevelt on August 19, 1933.

Do YOU Know—

That New York City, now the second largest city in the world had a population in the year 1623 of thirty families of Dutch colonists from Holland. It was then a small trading-post called New Amsterdam, so named after the principal city of Holland.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO FLY THE MAIL AT NIGHT!

● ABOVE—A. M. WILKINS, air-mail pilot for Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., has flown the night air mail over 150,000 miles. It takes healthy nerves to hang up a record like that!

● RIGHT—AT THE END of his night run A. M. Wilkins joins a fellow pilot, W. Niedernhofer, at Newark Airport, the Eastern Terminal of TWA, for a chat and a smoke. "Camels never ruffle or jangle my nerves," Wilkins says.

● EVER NOTICE HOW airplane passengers smoke at each refueling stop? Camels never get on your nerves, no matter how much you smoke, and there's more real enjoyment in their costlier tobaccos.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. They are milder, richer in flavor. They never tire your taste or get on your nerves.

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

A. M. WILKINS, air-mail ace, says: "It's a steady grind, all right, being a night hawk on the air mail. A man has to have healthy nerves to live up to our tradition that the mail must go through! That's why I smoke Camels. And I smoke plenty! Camels never ruffle or jangle my nerves, and I like their mild, rich flavor."

Graciousness

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

The use of good manners has a tremendous effect on the child's approach to the world about him. The child who is gracious is naturally more popular than the child who is brusque in manner.

It is true that graciousness is in part at least a gift, at times amounting almost to a special genius, and the owner of it, whether young or old, has an open sesame to the hearts of all with whom he comes in contact.

But even nature that can be refined, and often where it seems to be absent it is to some extent existent, and needs only care and cultivation for its development.

Children learn most by imitation, and the greatest social ease is gained by those who have lived with it day by day and unconsciously absorbed it from those about them.

Parents who ask rather than demand, who consider the convenience of others, who use the little refinements of breeding in their home life and towards their children and each other, find the training of their children in social behavior comparatively simple.

It is during the unconscious years of early childhood, even during babyhood that the most solid foundations are laid. The tiniest child may have implanted in him the basis of the whole social code without his ever realizing it.

For good manners are founded on consideration for others, and this principle never changes in any time or place. No matter what local usage may have to be grafted on in later years, the fundamental growth will be sound and need no changing.

And unquestionably the child's path will be smoother for the little extra effort thus entailed. He will be at home wherever he goes, his contacts will be doubled and his life immeasurably enriched.

It's School Time For Child Workers; What To Teach Them Is The Problem

This is the third and last article of a series dealing with the educational problems developing in those localities where elimination of child labor under the national recovery program likely will increase enrollments.

From Labor To Learning

(By The Associated Press)

What to teach the children whom the national recovery program is turning from labor into the classroom is a challenging consideration in some of the eastern industrial states.

It appears, for example, in Pennsylvania, where educators are planning to fit into its public school system 15,000 boys and girls from factories and mills, as well as in Connecticut, where provision must be made for 4,000 girls and boys released from labor.

Vocational Training Planned

In Pennsylvania special programs combining vocational training with academic studies are being devised at a time when state and local school finances are low.

Connecticut's 4,000 potential new pupils could be returned to school without requiring additional teachers or equipment, says N. S. Light, director of the field service of the board of education.

Girls Eager to Work

In most cases, he and other state education officials asserted, the girls in particular left school because they hated the classroom and were anxious to get out and "make money" even if only a few dollars a week.

Marcus Marks, who is in charge of the New Haven district, said he had talked to many girls who said they were girls who "just managed to pass the eighth grade" and now that they have lost their jobs because their employers are "under a code", they were going to stay home and do housework rather than go back to school with children many years younger.

Children Support Parents

He added that in other cases, protests came from parents who had come to depend on the earnings of their children.

Marks cited the case of one father, who said his daughter lost a job in a shirt factory where she earned $5 a week, the sole support of a family of 16. The father obtained a job at the same factory, but was dismissed after a few weeks as he could earn only $2 a week.

Child labor, Connecticut records show, has decreased steadily in recent years. The peak was reached during the World War period when there were 13,714 children holding work certificates in Connecticut compared with 4,000 on July 1, 1933.

Here are two contrasts—a boy worker in the mines and young students trained in vocational work as a part of their education. The national recovery program would make such contrasts impossible by removing children from industry.

Saugerties Baptist Church 100 Years Old

The First Baptist Church of Saugerties, which on Thursday, August 31, will celebrate its 100th birthday with special services, had its inception in the meeting conducted by Elder Mansfield Barlow, pastor of the Baptist Church of Kingston, at the old schoolhouse in Saugerties village. These meetings, attended by a congregation of considerable numbers, resulted in the formation, in February, 1833, of a branch of the Kingston church with 27 members. On August 29 of the same year, a council meeting, held in the Reformed Church and addressed by Elder A. Maclay, proceeded to recognize an independent church, organized subsequently to the formation of the branch church, and thus the Baptist Church society of Saugerties began its first hundred years.

The constituent members of the church were as follows: Deacon Richard Slee, Sarah Slee, James Irwin, Sabarah Irwin, William R. Hays, Eunice Hays, James and Ann James, Pauline Peet, William Trop, Hannah M. Trop, Rebecca Trop, Elizabeth Hopkins, Thomas Hopkins, Elizabeth Hopkins (2nd), William Lloyd, Reliance Bell, Abram B. Burhans, Silva Jaquay, Deacon James Delaney, Daniel Delaney, Edward Delaney, Mahara Delaney and Samuel Whitaker. Still others of the first congregation were, William L. Whitaker, Amanda Whitaker, John Whitaker, William Whitaker, George Whitaker, George F. and Jane Cogswell, Mary Woodworth, Ann D. Cronk, Mary Ann Gaskin, Henry Titter, Chrisian Bourne, James Masten, Jane Searles, Jane M. Swart, Sybil Marshall, Mrs. S. Smith, Thomas Larcombe and Anna S. Larcombe. Services of the new church occasionally were held in Glasco, in the vicinity of which community a number of the members resided.

The two deacons mentioned above probably were members of the official board of the Kingston Church before transfering their affiliations, or of the branch church formed in Saugerties in February, 1933. On September 26, 1833, J. Irving and S. Whitaker were chosen deacons, the former evidently having joined the society some time during the first month of its existence as a recognized religious body. The first pastor, Elder Thomas Larcombe, received a salary of $250 per annum, exculsive of donations and aid from the association. He appears also to have have acted as clerk of the church board. The Baptists, in 1837, started the erection of a house of worship, and the building was completed four years later at a cost of $3,000. The church edifice was remodeled and improved in 1859. A baptistry was added in 1866, and the auditorium was extensively refitted in 1870.

The early pastors or elders of the Saugerties Baptist Church were as follows: Thomas Larcombe August, 1833, to August, 1834; Alfred Osgood, May, 1836, to April, 1837; David Sampson, November, 1837, to September, 1838; E. S. Wheeler, 1840-42; Cyrus Shook, 1842-44; M. J. Kelly, 1844-45; L. L. Hill, 1845-47; B. C. Crandall, 1848-49; Robert Fisher, 1849-51; J. R. Johnson, 1852-54; S. B. Willis 1855-56; Daniel Eldridge, 1856-57; Elder Lawrence, 1857-58; D. W. Sherwood, 1858-61; H. L. Gross, May, 1861 to December, 1861; J. M. Ferris, 1861-62; D. W. Sherwood, 1863-67. On April 1, 1867, Elder H. C. Longyear assumed the pastorate and continued to occupy the pulpit until well along in the '80s, thus being considerably longer in the service of the Saugerties Church during its first half-century than any of his predecessors. There is a tradition that Elder Hill discovered a process of taking daguerreotypes in colors but passed from the field of his earthly labors before perfecting it, and without imparting the secret to any other person.

The Saugerties Baptist Church acquired many new members as the result of a spirited revival which took place in 1875-76, and by the first quarter of 1880 the number of communicants had increased to a total of 200 persons. The officers of the church in 1880 were as follows: Deacons, John H. Jones, Peter W. Coon, Dr. John Vedder and James Crump; Trustees, L. Fratscher, George Morgan, J. W. Van Loan, Jacob Rapelyea, William Morgan, P. W. Coon, C. E. Cornwell, W. C. Mitchell and E. Bates; Clerk, D. Y. Smith; Treasurer, Lewis Fratscher. The superintendent of the Sunday school at that time was J. W. Van Loan. Of these gentlemen, Messrs. Crum and Cornwell had adjoining places on Valley street; Mr. Fratscher was associated with John W. Davis and Egbert Cooper in the firm of Davis, Fratscher & Cooper; Dr. Vedder was an allopathic physician and surgeon at Jane and Bridge streets, and Mr. Coon was a well known carpenter of the village. Mr. Van Loan was one of the first presiding chancellors of North American Council, Knights of Pythias, No. 115, following its institution in 1874. The first meeting house of the Baptists, on Partition street, is now occupied as a garage by a bus line company.

Kingston: "Storm at Daybreak". Serbia, birthplace of the world war, is the setting of this excellent talkie. The story concerns itself with the mayor of a small Serbian town, the mayor's wife, and a young Hungarian officer who falls in love with her. The mayor, who is a personal friend of the youthful officer, sees his wife falling under the charm of the officer, and tries to accept the heartaches like a man. Then into the city rides Archduke Ferdinand, and shortly after his arrival, an assassin murders him, sending, the world into the greatest blood-letting game in history. Excitement, romance, reality and beauty are all skillfully blended into this picture, making it a dramatic treat of the first magnitude. One of the outstanding things the show offers is the quality of the cast. Walter Huston, Kay Francis, Nils Asther, Eugene Pallette, Phillips Holmes, and Jean Parker are all featured in important roles. Something to see.

Orpheum: "Song of the Eagle" and "Red Haired Alibi." Feature the first deals with the new deal in legal beer. An old German brewer, living in the United States, goes into the beer business when it is legalized. Gangsters kill him, and his son gathers some of his A. E. F. pals together and they clean up the mobmen in fine style. Jean Hersholt, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian and Charles Bickford head the cast. "Red Haired Alibi" has a cast including Merna Kennedy and Grant Withers.

Broadway: "The Eagle and the Hawk". A grim study in friendship, brilliantly done, is this tragedy of the war in which two young men, one a renowned ace of the squadron, the other his best friend, work out their destiny in the cockpit of an airplane, with one a suicide, the other a disillusioned boy. Frederic March contributes one of his finest performances in the fascinating character of the ace of the flyers, a man who becomes more and more certain that the whole business of killing is horrible and senseless, and the thought of the constant suffering and brutality that the war imposes is too much for him. He goes to pieces under the train, and suicides. His best friend, played by Gary Grant, takes the dead body of his pal, straps it into his plane, and heads for the enemy lines. Together they fall. March a hero to his buddies and the world at large. Grant a tragic pawn in the game of war. Jack Oakie handles the comedy end of the talkie in his usual capable style, and Carole Lombard, as the girl, is beautiful and effective in a secondary part. The combat scenes are especially thrilling in this talkie, and some of the air shots are spectacular in their beauty. Although tragic, this talkie is exceptional entertainment.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Warrior's Husband." A topsy-turvy comedy riot in which a great nation is ruled by stalwart Amazons, and all are aflutter when word is received that the Greeks are invading the land. The women prepare to fight, while the men stay at home and look pretty. The women go forth to battle, led by Elissi Landi, greatest fighter of them all, but the Greek warriors find the Amazons easier to look upon than to fight. High comedy from beginning to end as well as a distinctly different plot makes this talkie something worth seeing. The scenes are lavish, the direction exceptional, and the work of the fine cast is above criticism. Elissi Landi, David Manners, Ernest Truex and Marjorie Rambeau all are featured in this talkie triumph. Far and away one of the best of the current laugh producers. A subtle and furious show that never lets down for a moment.

Orpheum: Same.

Broadway: "Voltaire." The inimitable Arliss scores another glowing dramatic success in this, his last picture for Warner Brothers. Distinctively, realistically, he brings the fascinating Voltaire to the talking screen, and the poet-patriot of France lives and breathes again through the artistry of Mr. Arliss. Voltaire, philosopher, writer, confidant of the king, and the one man the king's mistress, Madame Pompadour, can trust, senses the coming of the French revolution and warns Louis XV. The king refuses to listen while the pauperized and downtrodden peasants kindle the flames of revolt. In an effort to show the king the error of his ways, Voltaire writes a play showing the injustice of the king. This angers the king greatly, and only the cleverness of Voltaire keeps him from being thrown in prison for displeasing the king. Done on a magnificent scale, by a capable cast in support of the star, this picture is one of the best and finest historical dramas to grace the screen since "Disraeli." The show is entirely Mr. Arliss', but the excellent work of Doris Kenyon, Reginald Denny and Alan Mowbray shouldn't be overlooked. Four star entertainment.

Cohan Signs To Play In O'Neil Production

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Joy and sorrow have struck a bargain on Broadway.

George M. Cohan, song-and-dance-man in whose hands even a melodrama turns into a guffaw, has said "You bet" to an offer to star in a new play by Eugene O'Neill, who concerns himself with the darker depths of the heart and mind.

"Magnificent," said Dancer-Actor-Dramatist-Producer - Manager - Composer-Lyricist Cohan as he read the script of "Ah, Wilderness," the O'Neill opus of thus far unrevealed content which the Theatre Guild plans to put on in October. Then he signed a contract and dashed off to the ball game, giving no clearer explanation of this five-star event in the theatre than:

"Well, I guess they just needed a good song and dance man."

Cohan has been in the theatre some 40 years and this will be the first time, except for a war benefit, that he has appeared in a play in the writing of which he had no share.

If the mask of comedy on one side of the proscenium should cross over and start chumming around with tragedy, Broadway would not have been more astonished. O'Neill, in winning his way to a position where many critics call him America's "First Dramatist," has had little to do with joy and laughter. Such things as New England tragedy cast in classical mould, or a stroker battling against society and being crushed in the grip of a hairy ape—these have been his interests. They say that even as a young man, arriving at Harvard with a batch of stark playlets in his bag, the lines of his face were already forming into the sombre mask it presents today.

Cohan's face is quizzical, genial. A boy prodigy at 5, he went on to become America's embodiment of gay, rythmic joy in the theatre—and to set a warring nation marching to the tune "Over There."

He says that next year, maybe O'Neill will act in one of his plays.

Hydrogen

Hydrogen is one of the chemical elements. It is sometimes found in a free state in volcanic gases. It is usually produced through the action of sulphuric acid on zinc or iron. Hydrogen made by electrolysis of a 15 per cent caustic solution is 97 per cent pure. Pure hydrogen is without odor, taste or color.

Marionette Shows

Marionette shows were known to the Greeks and Romans. Figures with movable limbs have been found in the tombs of ancient Egypt and Etruria, though many of these were probably children's dolls and afford little evidence of a puppet drama, the earliest development of which was in India.

A soft maple tree planted near Wakarusa, Ind., in 1871 measures 14 feet, three inches in circumference five feet above its base.

No wonder millions want this new, 3-times-safer tire!

Heat generated inside the tire separates rubber and fabric—starts "invisible blisters" which grow and grow... until BANG...a blow-out!

The exclusive Goodrich Life-Saver Golden Ply resists heat—makes the new Safety Silvertown 3 times safer from blow-outs at high speeds.

EVERY year thousands of tragic cases like these, appear in the daily newspapers.

What are you going to do about it? Run the risk yourself—or get blow-out protection free?

What causes blow-outs

When the speedometer reads 40, 50 and 60—mile after mile ... the heat inside the tire carcass becomes terrific. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A blister starts ... inside the tire where you can't see it ...And grows ... Until BANG! A blow-out!

Every new Goodrich Safety Silvertown has the amazing Life-Saver Golden Ply. This invention resists terrific heat — rubber and fabric don't separate. Thus blisters don't form inside the tire. Blow-outs are prevented by overcoming the very cause of blow-outs before they start.

The way to be safe is to make sure you get this Life-Saver Golden Ply Tire. It costs not a penny more than standard tires. Put a set of Goodrich Safety Silvertowns on your car before it is too late.

This insignia indicates that The B. F. Goodrich Company complies fully with the President's blanket code.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Timid financial markets failed to venture very far into the open today and prices, for the most part, held to a rather narrow range.

Stocks, while dull and uncertain, were inclined to ignore a sharp rally of the dollar in foreign exchange dealings and an easier tone in grains and cottons. With sterling down 11 cents at one time, there was little selling pressure noticeable in the more active shares and some specialties even moved up a point or more. Wheat sagged around a cent a bushel at Chicago, but was fairly steady at Winnipeg. Foreign bonds followed European exchanges down and domestic categories were moderately irregular.

Automobile company shares, led by General Motors, received what little play there was and the majority recorded gains of fractions to more than a point. Small advances were held by United Aircraft, Aviation Corp., Du Pont, Standard Oil of California, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central and Deere. Allied Chemical lost a point, Goodyear was off about as much and U. S. Steel, Case, Santa Fe, Western Union and many others were a bit lower. The alcohols were virtually unchanged.

WATER WITHIN TWO FEET OF TOP OF THE SPILLWAY

Shokan, Aug. 28—The water in east basin has reached the 585 ft. elevation above sea level, which gives it two more feet to go before the crest reaches the top of the spillway. It is still problematical whether or not the spillway falls will function this summer, although the Esopus Creek is still high and only a nominal volume of water is being let into the aqueduct. The Shandaken portal was shut off about the time of the big storm. The west basin is full to capacity and water is flowing over the dividing weir at the 590 ft. level. The water is still very roily as a result of the freshet. Department of Water Supply employes here say they never saw the west basin fill so rapidly as during the recent flood.

HEAD-ON COLLISION ON COLD BROOK BRIDGE

A Chevrolet owned and driven by George Hamilton of Phoenicia, and a Ford coupe owned and driven by S. Harry Miller of Willow, were badly damaged when they met in a head-on collision on the turn west of the Cold Brook bridge Sunday evening, the Chevrolet turning over on to its side.

Mrs. Miller, who was riding with her husband, suffered from lacerations of the left leg and hand and a possible fracture of the left leg. Her injuries were treated by Dr. Charles H. Quinn of Phoenicia. Hamilton was cut and bruised about the head and left shoulder. Trooper Mahoney made an investigation of the accident.

Ambulance Calls Here.

Mrs. E. Fenton was taken ill on Wall street on Saturday evening and after being treated by Dr. Van Wagenen was removed to her home, 60 Elizabeth street in the ambulance. The ambulance also removed Ella Melville from 455 Broadway to the Benedictine Hospital.

Stock Concern In New Location

The Kingston branch office of Morgan Davis & Co., stock exchange firm of 25 Broad street, New York city, opened up for business this morning in their commodious new quarters at 48 Main street, in the ground floor offices formerly occupied by Cohen Bros. for their real estate and antique business.

The Morgan & Davis Co. office was originally opened in the Eagle Hotel building, in 1924, but for the past eight years has occupied quarters upstairs in the Cohen building. Rodney B. Osterhoudt, who has had charge of the office since its coming to Kingston, is the manager.

The new offices are convenient and ideally located and well adapted to the use to which they are now being put, with a large customers' room, plenty of private office space and well lighted. The offices have been completely redecorated and new furniture will be installed shortly. Visitors have expressed the opinion that it is the best equipped brokerage office along the Hudson river.

The firm has its own direct private wire to New York. The task of moving the large board and equipment from the upstairs location, changing the wiring system and making other necessary readjustments was done without interfering with the regular business of the concern.

Germany Hints At Return of Saar

Berlin, Aug. 28 (AP).—Germans regarded as handwriting on wall today the broad hints of two leaders regarding restoration of the monarchy and the Reich's claim to the Saar territory.

Venerable President Paul Von Hindenburg said he was thinking of his "Kaiser, the king and lord" when he accepted as a gift from East Prussia a forest estate adjoining his ancestral home at Neudeck.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler told a crowd of 200,000 that Germany, without wanting a new war or proposing to annex anything foreign, would never renounce her claims to the Saar.

"The flying chancellor" in his swift airplane flew to both gatherings about 700 miles apart—the demonstration at Niederwald Mountain near the southwestern border, and exercises for Von Hindenburg at Tannenberg, near the eastern extremity.

Thousands of persons—representatives of the old imperial army in uniforms, an honor company of the standing army brown-shirted attendants, people from every German province, coal miners, farmers, and others—nodded knowingly as Hindenburg said:

"I am thinking with reverence, fidelity, and gratitude of my kaiser, the king and lord, in this hour, when I was thinking also of my deceased comrades in arms, and when I proceed to thank you for the gift."

Before the Niederwald monument Hitler predicted that in 1935 Saar residents would vote in a plebiscite to rejoin the fatherland. Now under League of Nations control, they will determine whether to remain a semi-autonomous state, become a part of France, or rejoin Germany.

"They lie when they say the German people are being terrorized," the chancellor said.

"I am willing to appeal to the electorate and am confident five sixths will back our program.

"We do not want a new war but if holy treaties are binding, they must bind our opponents as well as ourselves. We desire an understanding with France but will never abandon the Saar."

Dr. Fred H. Voss Now Convalescing

Dr. Fred H. Voss of Spring street who has been confined to his bed by illness is reported as rapidly convalescing. Dr. Voss with some friends recently visited the traps of the Ulster County Gun Club over the Washington avenue viaduct and indulged in clay pigeon shooting. Dr. Voss had not enjoyed the sport in some time and as a result his shoulder was badly jarred as a result of too much shooting. Dr. Frederic Holcomb was called and has been attending him since. Both Dr. Voss and Dr. Holcomb are members of the Kingston board of health. Dr. Voss has so far improved that Dr. Holcomb has been able to leave town on his vacation.

STORM DAMAGE REPORTED IN PHOENICIA SECTION

Phoenicia, Aug. 28 — Phoenicia had much to be thankful for during the high water as no one was injured. The roads were gouged out and the railroad was badly undermined.

The pasture lands of T. J. McGrath were ruined by stones and sand.

The families living on Railroad avenue left their homes quite early Wednesday night which was fortunate as the places were soon flooded and surrounded by water.

Cellars were flooded, trees blown down and one large window pane was brown out of the W. McGrath house.

Amery Neal found his home surrounded with water and the Esopus getting angrier steadily when he arose Thursday morning. He was taken out by boat.

Sunday a work train with men and cars of fill pulled in. This was the first train in since the high water.

The pump house and turntable have been fixed and will soon be in readiness to serve their purpose.

H. Boice found a bunch of large snake eggs washed out in sand along the bank. He broke one and quite a snake came out.

Another Farm Bureau Tour To World's Fair

There has been such a consistent demand for another World's Fair Tour that the New York State Farm Bureau Federation is making arrangements for one, September 25 to 30, in cooperation with the New York Central Railroad. Practically the same schedule as the previous tour is being arranged. Accommodations will be limited to 1,000 persons and those interested in going should apply directly to J. W. Switzer, General Passenger Agent, N. Y. Central Lines, 466 Lexington avenue, New York city.

Over 100 persons from Ulster county took part in the first tour, which accommodated 2,000 persons from all parts of the state. The same comfortable, high class service is being arranged for the second tour.

St. Pierre, Miquelon, Aug. 28 (AP).—Bluejackets from two French warships patrolled the streets today after a week of intermittent tax rioting, but leaders of the protest movement claimed success.

Dr. Daniel T. Winter Dead In Jersey City

Dr. Daniel T. Winter, a native of Pine Hill, died at his home, 8 Clifford avenue, Jersey City, Saturday. Winter, who for years ran the popular summer resort in Pine Hill known as the Winterton. He received his early education in Pine Hill and in the Kingston schools, his parents being winter residents of this city. Later he attended the University of Vermont, from which he graduated. Dr. Winter had practiced in Jersey City for more than 20 years and was a member of the surgical staff of the Jersey City Medical Center. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma D. Henry Hines Will Face Bigamy Charge

The Poughkeepsie Evening Star says:

Henry Stelling Hines, 46, former Madalin resident, who was picked up by Sheriff Cookingham recently on an abandonment charge, now faces an accusation of bigamy too, because authorities learned that the same day he was indicted by the Dutchess grand jury for abandonment, he married a second wife without having done anything about the first. He is held at the jail pending arraignment and investigation.

Wife No. 1, who filed the abandonment accusation, Clara Elizabeth Lown Hines, the defendant Hines married December 22, 1919 in Kingston before the Rev. Charles G. Ellis, authorities say. Wife No. 2, Sally Rose of Luzerne, Warren county, Hines acquired by marriage in May, the same time he was being indicted for abandonment.

Troopers who are investigating, have uncovered a strange tangle, District Attorney Schwartz said. Troopers reported in their investigation, that Sally Rose Hines, 32, is the former wife of one Edward Madison of Claverack, too, although marriage records of Hines' second marriage indicate that both he and his second wife said they were facing their first marital venture when they were married by the Rev. George M. Folsom at Luzerne before Forrest A. and Laura Winch as witnesses.

Mr. Schwartz said that under a recent decision, a bigamy charge can be prosecuted in a county where a defendant faces an abandonment and need not be prosecuted in the county where the alleged bigamous marriage was contracted. At the time of his first marriage Hines said he was a native of Flatbush, and that he was residing in Kingston. He gave his occupation as chauffeur.

TEXAS LAWYER TAKES HIS PROFESSION TO TASK

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 28 (AP).—A lawyer took his profession to task today because, he said, it not only did not guard against unscrupulous and incompetent persons obtaining licenses to practice law, but lacked power to drive them out of the profession.

He is Davis A. Simmons, of Houston, Tex., vice-president of the American Bar Association, delivering the address which launched the opening day meeting of the conference of Bar Association delegates. The session was a prelude to the American Bar Association convention which opens here Wednesday.

He contended educational requirements alone were not sufficient to guarantee that a person licensed will be a good lawyer. He suggested a probationary period of three to five years after graduation from law school, during which the graduate would be free to practice law of any kind under a special dispensation.

At the close of the probationary term, the probationer would have to account to some governing board and prove that he not only was an able counsel but had resisted successfully the temptations to resort to the unscrupulous in practice and in private life.

As an added safeguard, Simmons suggested that a limitation be placed on the number of persons who could be licensed to practice law, with quotas allotted to the various states.

PRESIDENT OF TB AUXILIARY SEEKING PAYMENT OF DUES

The president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital is asking that those members of the auxiliary who have not yet paid their dues, be kind enough to do so as soon as possible. There is a shortage of $85 in the payment of the dues for this year which is handicapping the work which the auxiliary is doing at the hospital. The material for the Occupational Therapy work done by the patients and which means so much to them is purchased entirely from the fund created by the payment of dues and there are other activities and helps in making the patients comfortable and happy that also depend upon this fund. Because of all this, the outstanding dues are really necessary.

The regular meeting of the auxiliary which would have come on Monday, Labor Day, has been postponed to Monday, September 11, when all members that can possibly do so are urged to be present.

Repealers Defeat Schryvers And Win City League Pennant

Morgan's Repealers won the championship of the City Baseball League by defeating the Schryver Lumbermen, 6-2, at the Athletic Field Saturday afternoon. It marked the second straight series victory without defeat for the Repealers, who gained the right to play in the series by winning the first half of the loop. The Lumbermen were the victors in the second half.

Ted Fraleigh, ace righthander of the pitching staff who led the Repealers to most of their victories during the season and made it possible for them to be in the series, was the big gun in the win due to his pitching and hitting.

Although Fraleigh was the winning pitcher he by no means had easy sailing for he had to fight an uphill battle the biggest portion of the game. His hardest inning was the second when all the runs were scored off his delivery. In all he was nicked for eight hits and issued one walk.

The Lumbermen imported "Dutch" Ruge from Poughkeepsie to do the elbowing for them and for seven innings it appeared as though he would be returned the winner. But in the eighth inning he weakened and was found for five hits and four runs, which proved to be his undoing. He permitted 13 hits and one walk.

The game was featured with plenty of long hits in which Charlie Tiano led the parade with a home run. Percy Slover followed closely with a triple, while Pres Knight hit two doubles. Robins, Fraleigh, Davitt and Lay also poled two-baggers.

The Lumbermen scored first, making all their runs in the second inning and the way Ruge was hurling the three runs looked as if they would be enough.

Ruge drew a pass to start the rally and advanced to second base on "Coke" Tiano's single to left field. Hulsair also singled to left field and Ruge raced home with the first run. Slover then hit his triple and Tiano and Hulsair registered.

The Repealers also scored in their half of the second inning. Lay singled to left field and was forced at second base by C. Tiano. Knight hit his first double at this time and C. Tiano dented the rubber.

A walk to Sickler paved the way to the Repealers' second run. He registered on Fraleigh's double to centerfield.

Singles by Lutz Bruhn and Sickler started the Repealers on their winning rally. Sickler was forced out at second by Fraleigh and Bruhn scored when Petersen erred trying to complete a double play at first base. Lay drove Fraleigh home with a double to right field and C. Tiano climaxed the rally with his circuit clout.

SIDELINERS

"Specs" Ellis, who pitched the Repealers to victory in the first game, replaced Merritt in the outfield in the seventh inning.

After the second inning the Lumbermen were handcuffed by Fraleigh's slants.

All of the Repealers with the exception of Ellis connected for a least one safe hit.

Fraleigh's easiest inning was the eighth when he tossed but four balls to the batters.

The loving cup, donated by Sweeney & Schonger, is on display at Morgan's Restaurant.

Baseball experts consider the winning of the City League flag equivalent to the championship of Ulster county as the best players in the county participated during the regular season.

Rally In Eighth Wins For Crystals Over Pinecrest, 9-3

An eighth inning rally, netting six runs gave the Crystal Gardens Club a 9-2 victory over the Pinecrest team of West Orange, N. J. Sunday afternoon at the Pan-Am field on the Saugerties road. Prior to the scoring spree of the home club, the scores was deadlocked at 3 all. Gene Ryder led the hitting attack of the Crystals by cracking out three doubles.

The Crystal Gardens scored three runs in the first inning. Feldmesser and Niles singled to left field and Dawkins singled to deep right bringing the two home. Dawkins dented the rubber when Ryder doubled. No more runs were scored by the club until its rally for six runs in the eighth.

Pinecrest made two runs in the third frame. Beenan doubled and trotted home on Lennon's single. Lennon came in on Bergen's one-bagger. In the sixth the West Orange boys tied the score. Bergen singled, was sacrificed to second, and brought in the tying run on Fahy's single.

In the eighth the Crystals went to work with the stick, garnering the six runs that shored them ahead for victory. Dawkins tripled to deep right and scored on Ryder's double. Glaser walked. Sullivan in center field dropped DeGroate's fly, and Ryder trotted home. Thomas singled, scoring Glaser and DeGroat. Feldmesser singled. Gould, Pinecrest pitcher, was replaced by "Buddy" Nicholas and then Niles was safe on a fielder's choice as Thomas was thrown out at the plate. Carpenter singled over second, bringing in Feldmesser and Niles.

Off Gould and Nicholas the Crystal Gardens collected 12 hits. Bill Thomas, twirling for the home club, allowed nine hits to the visitors.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Despite the snapping of their eight game winning streak, the Boston Braves, sensation of the National League, had clipped another half-game off the New York Giants' lead today and found themselves six games out of first place.

With a crowd of 40,000 urging them on, the Braves hung up their eighth successive win as Tom Zachary pitched a 7-0 shutout over the Cincinnati Reds in the first game of a double-header yesterday but the Reds came back to snare the second, 5-3.

Their even split still enabled the Braves to pick up half a game on the Giants who dropped the first game of a twin bill to Dizzy Dean and the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-1, and then were lucky enough to get a 5-5 draw in the second battle, halted by darkness after eight innings.

The veteran Zachary turned in one of his most impressive performances as he blanked the Reds with four hits.

Dean stopped the Giants with six hits and fanned six in the opening game while his mates bombarded Hal Schumacher and Glenn Spencer for 12 safeties, one a homer by George Watkins.

The American League situation remained unchanged as both the Washington Senators and New York Yankees split double-headers, leaving the Senators still eight games in front.

KINGSTON CARDINALS WILL PLAY ROAMERS

There will be a baseball game tonight at 6:30 on the Fair Grounds diamond between the Kingston Cardinals and the Roamer A. C. Roberts and Wolf will form the Cardinal battery.

Meaning of Word "Rinceau"

In architecture and the decorative arts, rinceau is an ornament consisting of a continuous wavy line, from the sides of which there branch at intervals lines or forms that twist into spirals.

SPORT SLANTS
By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The secret about Equipoise, greatest of thoroughbred race-horses now in training and regarded as the nearest thing to racing perfection since Man O'War, finally is out.

The five-year-old star of the C. V. Whitney establishment has a weakness for carrots. It wasn't discovered at first, although carrots have long been considered a delicacy on the carefully prepared menu of any thoroughbred king or queen. Now Freddie Hopkins, former trainer of the horse, says:

"Equipoise always seems to run best after a good supper of carrots the night before a big event."

Carrots for speed apparently, and spinach for strength.

Ouimet Not Worried

The man seemingly least concerned about Francis Ouimet's failure to qualify for this year's national amateur golf championship was Francis Ouimet.

"To hear these people talk you would think something terrible had happened," he told Arthur Sampson. "They seem to think I should toss my clubs away in disgust and criticize the U. S. G. A. for the qualifying arrangements. What a foolish attitude.

"The world won't come to an end just because I fail to play well enough to get into this championship. My game didn't deserve a place. I wasn't properly prepared but that was my own fault.

"So many good youngsters are popping up all over the country now that no one is sure to qualify or get anywhere in the championship itself. We will have a good representation from this section. Old Cousin Jesse (Guilford) is playing well enough to win and Fred Wright is always dangerous. The younger generation like Wilfred Crossley, Joe Lynch, Jimmy Dolan and Eddie Kirouac is coming fast. Bill Blaney needs to be afraid of no one in national competition."

Bad Year For Favorites

Ouimet happens to be just another victim of a year in which it has been pretty well demonstrated so far that anything can happen and probably will before the final kickoff in December.

The list of fallen favorites and champions is mounting so fast that it will take a rapid calculator at the year's end to tally the results.

Gene Sarazen was toppled off both golfing thrones he occupied in 1932. Ellsworth Vines was displaced by Jack Crawford at Wimbledon and the British took the Davis cup away from France.

The 1932 major league batting champions aren't even in the race this year, to all intents and purposes, while the Yankees seem on the way out, too.

They have been picking up boxing champions, from the resin, minus their titles, most of the year with the list of beaten titleholders including Tony Canzoneri, Young Corbett III, Ben Jeby and Jack Sharkey.

But we still have Helen Wills Moody, Tommy Hitchcock and Equipoise to maintain some consistency in the old order.

Football Mentor Lies Near Death

Marshfield, Mass., Aug. 28 (AP)—Major Frank W. Cavanaugh—"Cav" of football fame—today lay critically ill at his Marshfield home.

The world war hero and nationally known football coach sank rapidly through the night and he was not expected to live through today. He recently underwent an operation.

While football coach at Dartmouth, Boston College and Fordham he created some of the most spectacular teams in modern football history.

Helen Jacobs Won In National Tennis

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Boston for the first time since 1922 in American tennis championship competition, Helen Willis Moody was California bound for home today, leaving a flock of controversial echoes in the wake of the history-making match she defaulted in the third set to Helen Hull Jacobs, for the National Women's title.

The circumstances marking the end of Queen Helen the First's long reign at Forest Hills Saturday added a dramatic and extraordinary chapter to the annals of the sport. Unquestionably they lifted "Helen the Second," to the throne room of women's tennis for 1933, as she won her second successive national championship. Yet it may be a long time before tennis fans or critics are satisfied as to what extent Mrs. Moody's ailments contributed to her downfall or whether she might have found sufficient reserve to finish after losing the first three games of the final set.

Delayed exactly a week by rain, the championship final was a duel of invalids. For Miss Jacobs, too, had been under a doctor's care throughout the tournament as a result of over-strain. But "Helen the Second" outplayed her rival in most of the critical exchanges and she was much the stronger of the two starting the third set, after an hour's hard play in which she pulled out the first set 8-6 and lost the second 3-6. For the first time in eight contests between the two California girls, Miss Jacobs played Mrs. Moody on even terms and clearly earned her laurels.

Whether or not Mrs. Moody could have continued, she was obviously fast losing her physical resources, handicapped by wearing a brace to protect her injured back and a weakening right leg. Only Queen Helen herself knew how close she was to utter collapse. Her statement afterward was that she simply could not continue because she felt "as if I were going to faint."

At the time Mrs. Moody simply was going through the motions of playing tennis. She made no effort whatever to reach some of Miss Jacobs's low-spinning shots.

It could have added little or nothing to Miss Jacobs's victory for the match to be finished, under the circumstances. Coupled with the physical strain was the fact that Mrs. Moody's usually steady and resourceful game has gone to pieces under her rival's pressure and brilliant stroking. Yet there were many "die-hards"—forgetting the criticism for permitting Ellsworth Vines to play until he collapsed at Paris—who felt apparently that Mrs. Moody should have played out the match at any cost—in other words "taken it."

There were also some who saw in the outcome the possible finish of Mrs. Moody's championship career, at home as well as abroad.

She is only 27 years old but she has been playing national championship tennis for a dozen years. The signs that season already pointed to the end of her long domination of the women't court.

KASLICH A. C. WINS AT TANNERSVILLE, 3-1

Playing at Tannersville Sunday afternoon, the Kaslich A. C. of Kingston defeated the village team by the score of 3-1, Chambers starring on the mound for the Kingstonians. He allowed only six hits while his team touched up Glennon for 10.

Next Sunday the Kaslich club will travel to Stone Ridge. Probable battery for the local team on that date is Flemming and Messing.

Way to Satisfy Longing

Those who are continually wanting and longing for something a little out of their reach, will find there is no quicker way to have these wants satisfied than by trying to help some one else.

Port Ewen Defeats P. N. A. Club, 10-2

The Port Ewen Firemen, entertaining the P. N. A. baseball team of Kingston, at Hercules Field Sunday afternoon, defeated it by the score of 10-2. Peterson and Best starred in the offensive of the Firemen. Peterson hit three times out of the same number of trips to the plate and Best smatted the porcelain three out of four times. In the P. N. A. drive for hits F. Leslie cracked out a double and Stumpf, who met the ball three out of four times up, also walloped one for two bases.

Pitching for the P. N. A., Nicholas and Peters had one and two strikeouts, respectively. McKenzie and Manello on the Port Ewen mound each registered four.

The score by innings:

P. N. A.	1	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	— 2
Port Ewen	1	0	0	3	4	2	0	0	0	—10

Scheduled Games.

Next Sunday the P. N. A. will play another game with the Firemen. This contest is to take place at Hasbrouck Park and is expected to be be attended by a large number of fans.

On Monday, September 4, Labor Day, the P. N. A. will play a Newburgh team at Hasbrouck Park.

Social Club Bows To Po'keepsie, 8-9

Sunday afternoon at Hasbrouck Park, the North Rondout Social Club lost a close game to the Poughkeepsie P. N. A., when Nichols, catcher for the visiting club, knocked a triple which he stretched for a fluke home run in the eighth inning putting his club in the lead. Final score of the battle was 9-8 in favor of the Poughkeepsie team.

Featuring in the hitting attack of the Social Club was Ray Raskoski, who connected three times out of five trips to the plate, smashing out a double and two singles. Nichols of Poughkeepsie hit three out of five, too, his efforts consisting of the fluke homer and two singles.

Opposing batteries were Komosa and Gardner for the Rondouts, and Kosawski and Nichols for Poughkeepsie. Komosa gave 14 hits and struck out nine batsmen. Kowaski allowed 10 hits and struck out 11.

Hasbrouck Tennis Tournament Off

The tennis tournament scheduled to be held at Hasbrouck Park, under the auspices of several young men who play on the park courts, has been called off because enough contestants could not be procured.

Joneses To Play Yankees Tuesday

The Black Yankees, one of the strongest colored clubs on the traveling circuit of semi-pro nines, will come to the Athletic Field Tuesday evening for a tilt with Manager Harold Jones's All Stars who last week made their debut in local baseball circles by trimming the Brooklyn Royal Giants.

Jones expects that the Yankees will prove much stronger than the Royals, although the Brooklyn colored boys gave his team plenty to worry about. The local manager expects to have four pitchers on hand for the Yankees — Bill Thomas, Dewey Van Buren, "Lefty" Martin and Ted Fraleigh.

It is presumed that the visitors will use Speed Rector as their pitcher with Clarke behind the bat. This is a battery combination which has dumped many formidable clubs.

Friday night the House of Davis will be here to play the Joneses.

SPOILED SPORT

Algernon, armed with up-to-date fishing outfit, emerged from the railway station and made straight for the stream.

He wore a contented and expectant smile as he arranged his tackle and adjusted the bait. Then he selected a shady spot on the bank near the bridge, threw out his line, and awaited results.

For two hours he waited, and for a quarter of that time a yokel annoyed him by leaning over the bridge and watching him.

At last the yokel spoke. "Hi, mister," he said, "you'll catch no fish there."

The sportsman threw down his rod in disgust.

"You silly juggins!" he exclaimed. "Why did you tell me that? Now you've spoiled my whole day's fishing!"

Wings

"Is your family going to be active in society?"

"I suppose so," answered Senator Sorghum. "You can't expect them to deny themselves the same pleasures that they enjoyed at home."

"Will you become a social butterfly yourself?"

"No, I'll keep working hard and try to fly high enough to get into the airplane class."

Seemed Wasteful

The son of the house was gazing through the drawing room window at the rain.

Presently he turned to his mother. "Mummy," he said, "why does it rain?"

"To make things grow," she replied; "to give us flowers and apples and pears—"

"Then why does it rain on the pavements?" asked the child.

Obeying Instructions

The new office boy had been instructed how to answer callers. Just before noon a man asked, "Is the boss in?"

"Are you a salesman, a bill collector or a friend of his?" the boy inquired.

"All three," was the answer.

"Well, he's in a business conference."

EXPRESSION

"See the latest? A beauty specialist says the back may be made highly expressive."

"It can when a woman turns it on you."

George (From Next Door)—Mrs. Jones, may I use your telephone?

Henry Pariser Wins Marathon Swim Held At Williams Lakes

Swimming one of the fastest races of his career, Henry Pariser, famous merman of the New York Boys' Club, splashed his way to victory for the second successive year in the annual Binnewater Marathon Swim held under the auspices of the Williams Lakes Swimming Club and Life Guards Association at the Williams Lakes Beach yesterday afternoon.

Pariser, Metropolitan A. A. U. champion, was forced to the extreme of his ability by Herbert Brooks, sensational breast-stroke specialist and captain of the Williams Lakes Swimming Club, who swam neck to neck with Pariser over the entire distance of the course. It was not known who would be the winner until the pair were but 200 yards from the finish at which point both put on a home-stretch sprint. Pariser, having just a little more reserve energy, out-swam his young Binnewater rival by five yards in the final spurt to win in the time of 22 minutes, 11 seconds for the course which is approximately one mile.

At the half-mile mark, Brooks led Pariser by several feet, taking from the champion the half-mile record of 13:59 which he established in winning this event last year. Brooks' time of 13:30 2-5 for the half mile has placed him in line as one of the best free style swimmers in this part of New York state. He is the brother of William Brooks, coach of the local swimming team and instructor at Williams Lakes. Young Brooks is previous holder of the Middle Atlantic States record in the breast-stroke, which is his specialty, therefore making his hard fought runner-up position in the marathon the surprising achievement of the day. Last season Pariser held the lead throughout the race to defeat Fred Dippel, the great Philadelphia swimmer, with considerable advantage.

The crowd had hardly finished applauding this remarkable finish when its attention was drawn to the finishing struggle between Henry Idema of Beacon and Hyman Kaplan, junior champion of the Williams Lakes Swimming Club. Idema and Kaplan, who also swam neck to neck over the entire course of the lake, were still together 14 yards from the finish, when Idema, the Beacon representative, won by his experience to navigate at this point of the race.

Charles Wollman of Newburgh swam an exceedingly even pace over the placid Binnewater course to finish for the fifth place medal. James Acquara, another representative of the city of Newburgh, gained the last place medal. John Kinney of Kingston proved his aquatic ability by finishing the three long stretches of the lake in exceedingly fast time considering the fact that he swam a little off his course, therefore swimming much more yardage than necessary. The other competitors were Bradford Staib of the Jersey City Swimming Club, and Thomas MacDonald of Roseton, and several post entries which made up the fast moving field of competitors.

While the fleet of ten boats were preparing to escort the marathoners to the starting position on the far side of the lake, the hundreds of guests of the club were treated to the encore exhibition of Bernard Kelly, one of America's greatest fancy diving artists. From the Olympic springing board, Kelly, who has won over 20 indoor and outdoor championship titles during his career, performed his list of sensational acrobatic stunts. Only Saturday night, Kelly won both the low board and high tower diving titles at the great American Legion Championship Meet held in Newburgh.

Also on the program were record breaking exhibitions of stamina and speed by the other youthful members of the Williams Lakes Swimming Club, who were all gold medal winners at the above mentioned American Legion meet. Louise Murphy splashed her way down the 50-yard course in the fast time of 34 seconds. Doris Sibbett lowered her time of 46 seconds made at Newburgh to 44 and 4-5, establishing a new record for backstroke for junior girls. A carefully selected relay trio of Herb Brooks, Bob Hassmiller, and Hyman Kaplan established an outstanding record which will no doubt be of long standing for a three-man medley relay race. Brooks, winner of the Newburgh breast-stroke, swam his style for the first length giving the water to Hassmiller for his part in the backstroke. After Hassmiller finished his leg of the race, Kaplan, with a sensational spurt, touched the finish mark giving the team the fast time of 2 minutes and 1-5 seconds for the 150 yards.

HARNESS RACES AT THE STATE FAIR SEPTEMBER 4

Syracuse, N. Y. Aug. 28.—For the first time since 1924 the Empire State has the distinction of entertaining the famous Western Horseman, three-year-old trot, at the fair which inaugurates its harness racing on Labor Day, September 4, and continues it through September 7.

Officially launched in 1907, the Horseman Futurity, as it is known to many horsemen and fans, was held for many years in Syracuse, then in Indianapolis, and back to Syracuse. Not for seven years, however, has the historic trot been seen here.

This year the Western Horseman has drawn all of the three-year-old trotting aces which made the Hambletonian Stake the colorful speed carnival it was at Goshen, N. Y. Once more Mary Reynolds and Brown Berry, the filly's closest rival, will fight it out for glory and lucre, with the rest of the field not far behind.

ORIGINAL SAWKILL CLUB DEFEATS TWAALFSKILL ROSE

The Original Sawkill Club defeated the Twaalfskill Hose Co., formerly known as the Irish Block Second Team, by the score of 12 to 8. Haggerty pitched for Sawkill and gave eight hits. Conlin for Twaalfskill allowed 15. Haggerty held the visitors hitless until the seventh when he weakened. Jess Hulsair and Roy Miner again featured as the heavy hitting and scoring stars for Sawkill.

Sawkill will play the Saranac Club of Brooklyn next Sunday at Sawkill for the second time this season.

To Wed Famous Amateur Jockey

Roslyn, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP).—Miss Laura Elizabeth Curtis will be married to George Herbert (Pete) Bostwick, famous amateur jockey and millionaire sportsman, on October 7 at Trinity Episcopal Church here, Mrs. James Freeman Curtis, her mother, announced today. Miss Curtis's father is a New York attorney and a former secretary of the treasury. Bostwick, cousin of Tommy Hitchcock, another famous polo player, is widely known as a steeplechase rider and polo player. He was a member of the international polo squad in 1921.

Backing Out

"To back out of a thing" conveys the idea of getting out of a thing clumsily or awkwardly, suggested by the backing of a horse out of a stable.

Local NRA Official Notices and Rulings

Barbers In Appeal.

The following appeal was issued from the Kingston headquarters of the National Recovery Administration. The NRA plan is to reemploy millions, by shortening the hours of all workers in every occupation.

The barber in years gone by, worked from seven o'clock until nine o'clock week days and on Saturdays until twelve p. m.; Sundays from eight a. m. until one and two p. m. Those were the good old days, pardon me, I should say those were the good old slaves. Then the shops closed on Sundays, and finally the hours were cut so the poor souls could enjoy the evenings at home like a human being. During the world war, the prices of haircuts were increased to 50 cents, and most places 75 cents for a hair cut. Kingston barbers never charged more than 50 cents. After that, the barbers' salary increased to $28 per week and half over $38, giving the workingman 50 cents of every dollar that he took in over $38. That wasn't a bad break for the barbers, they at least could live on that. Then Old Man Depression came along, and the barbers' salary was cut to $20 and half over $30. Some shops paid $20 per week straight, and other shops paid from $12 per week to $15. Yes, brother, lots of them.

Then the barber decided to give the public a break, and cut the haircuts from 50 to 40 cents. Some shops were cutting hair for 25 and thirty-five cents. That was done to give the unemployed a chance. But, believe me, it didn't increase the business. It consequently resulted in cutting in on the barber's living expenses. And the outcome of the cut was a hard-hit blow to the barbers.

Now the public in general does not mind paying 50 cents for a haircut. It takes a barber from fifteen to twenty minutes to cut a head of hair. A barber is not able to cut over three heads of hair an hour, and he is only working half the time.

In addition, the NRA calls upon employers to pay at least living wages in order that the working man will be able to maintain a decent American standard, even with shorter hours. What a blessing it will be if the barber can go home and enjoy the evening with his family, and thus become acquainted with his home. When my youngest daughter was three years old, I got home early one afternoon, and on seeing me she called to her mother and said: "Here comes the man that eats with us every Sunday."

Of course some one will say, "I remember when they shaved a person for 10 cents, and cut hair for 25." And in those days one was able to buy a good pair of shoes for two dollars, but brother it can't be done today.

When a barber pays his rent, light bill, laundry, insurance, and barber supplies, and he only receives 20 cents for a shave, and 40 cents for a haircut, he is only existing today, so why not give the barber a break. Pay his 50 cents for a haircut, and you will find that you receive better service, neater work, and it gives the barber a chance to make a living. The prices which are being charged now are the prices all over the United States. And I know that when the code comes out for the barbers, the standard prices will be 25 cents for a shave, and 50 cents for a haircut.

The Albany Knickerbocker Press this past Sunday printed a large announcement by the Albany Barbers' Association, Inc., announcing new prices effective Monday, August 28. "Hair cuts 50 cents and shave 25 cents. All barber shops in Albany will go on the above schedule. Opening and closing hours, 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. week days, 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. Saturdays."

The permissible code which was received at the chapter of the Master Barber Association, Kingston, N. Y., calls for a 48-hour week, 25 cents for shaves and 50 cents for hair cuts, the salary of the barbers being $20 per week and half over $32. At this scale of wages a barber is able to make a living, and I hope that the people of Kingston will not misunderstand the raise in the price of hair cuts. Don't forget the big parade Thursday. Let's all have a good time, and look forward to a brighter and better future. Help one another, and make the good old U. S. A. what it used to be.

Very truly yours,
R. A. BERNARD OBENAUS
Pres. of the Master Barbers' Association of Kingston.

Reports Everything Fine at Pine Camp

A week-end motor trip to Pine Camp was made by Kenneth Van-Etten, former supply sergeant of Battery A, 156th Field Artillery. George Bush, once a cook in Battery B, which has been transferred to Poughkeepsie and John Long of Hasbrouck avenue.

The three, who returned to Kingston late Sunday night, reported everything going fine with the Kingston soldiers of Battery A who are getting fat on the cooking of Jim Lyons and his kitchen brigade. Sunday Jimmy cooked a tasty chicken dinner for the boys, who left nothing but the bones. "In fact," said Ken Van Etten in making a report of his trip, "the k. p.'s didn't have to do much cleaning on the plates after the bunch got through with 'em."

Talking further of matters at Pine Camp, Van Etten said "Chubby" Joyce, who has been there for a month or more, looks like a fat man in a circus. Private George Hotaling fell asleep with a lighted cigarette in his hand and nearly burnt up a tent. First Sergeant "Hype" Giles of Battery A has no trouble in getting the boys up mornings—they are out ahead of him. The weather at Pine Camp is ideal and has been since the Kingston Guardsmen arrived. They didn't experience any of the heavy rain which fell in Kingston. There was a light shower Thursday. Sunday the local soldiers were on guard duty and had no chance of taking a trip to the Thousand Islands over the week-end. Besides the 156th there are two other outfits at camp—the 27th Division Aviation Corps and 106th Field artillery. The 106th is fully motorized, having been turned over from a horse-drawn artillery right after the big fire which destroyed the Buffalo armory more than a year ago. It is expected that the 156th will be motorized within a short time. This change will probably be a hard blow to Sergeant John Roosa, one of Ulster county's best known horsemen, who trained Cody, National Guard horse that several years ago won the title of world's walking champion at Madison Square Garden. Cody competed against the best in the world.

Eichler Special, 50 Cents.

Repairing Damage In Esopus Valley

Workmen Busy Making Safer Conditions For Travel In Reservoir Country—Hundreds View Damage By The Flood.

Shokan, Aug. 28—The Esopus Valley country lying between Cold Brook and Phoenicia presented an animated scene Saturday morning, as scores of men and trucks were busy repairing the damage done by Thursday's freshet along state highway No. 28. At a point opposite the Cold Brook House the water had washed out a stretch of macadamized pavement and this gap in the road was being made passable temporarily by a filling of stone and gravel. At the south entrance to Mt. Tremper village, the shoulders of the highway were bare down to the sub-base of stone for hundreds of yards, and another crew of workmen were engaged in making safer conditions for travel at this point. Between Mt. Tremper and Phoenicia, the clay and gravel banks had slid down onto the pavement at several points, and here also were a number of the familiar "Men Working" signs. The usual heavy week-end travel to the mountains, together with that of a large number of cars from up the valley, where people had been unable to get out in this direction for several days, added further to the congestion which ensued along the line as a result of the reconstruction activities.

Hundreds of persons drove up and down the valley during the day merely for the purpose of viewing the damage done by the flood. In going north from Cold Brook, the first signs of a destructive freshet are seen at the south end of the Winne flats, where a portion of the flood waters, after leaving the creek bed at a considerable distance west of the state road, took a shortcut through the fields and completely covered the flats on both sides of Route 28. It was at this point that the family of Carleton VanBramer were supposed for several hours to be marooned in their home, with the raging main stream of the creek on one side and a deep lake of many acres of extent surrounding them on the other sides. The guard fence along the road is all but heaved from position; the embankment of the roadway, where the creek strikes it at almost a right angle, has been washed out noticeably, so much so that a wall of further protection of huge stone blocks will have to be put in there against the time of another freshet. The tennis court at the Cold Brook House operated by the Roths was all but wrecked, while the state road, as mentioned above, was torn up for a considerable distance at this point. The fine fields of corn and alfalfa on the flats, being on a slightly higher elevation than the south end, were untouched by the spreading waters.

The next spot along Route 28 where signs of the flood are in evidence is just around the turn above the Hudler boarding house, where, at Lane's garage, the scene is one of destruction and desolation. Driftwood lies everywhere; it clings to the trees and litters up the front yards of the several houses on either side of the road. A gas pump was undermined and turned over and the parking ground in front of the garage converted into a series of gullies and heaps of cobblestones. It is here that much of the damage to the shoulder of the highway was done, as the Esopus, having jumped the high bank, raced madly through field and apple orchard, crossed the road and proceeded to rip things up generally. It is but a short distance above this point, in the rear of George Byron's residence, that the ill-fated span of the iron bridge at Mt. Tremper lies in the still rapidly moving water, having sunk to the bottom of the creek after floating majestically downstream a quarter of a mile following its sudden removal from pier and abutment.

That portion of the bridge which still remains in position, together with the wide gap left by the washing away of the east span, naturally comes in for a deal of attention on the part of sightseers. The damage evidently originated at the east, or Mt. Tremper end of the structure, as the abutment there is entirely gone, and indeed a considerable stretch of roadway might have suffered the same fate had it not been for a great pine tree, three feet in diameter, whose mass of thousands of roots, now exposed in all their impressive ramifications, evidently kept the clay bank from being undermined and perhaps also prevented the village schoolhouse from going down the creek (Came near getting a break that time, eh fellers?). At present, the only way to get from Mt. Tremper to the railroad station at Mt. Pleasant—a distance of half a mile or so—is by way of Phoenicia, a distance of several miles around.

At John Hoffman's Elm Lunch resort, between Mt. Tremper and Phoenicia, the damage was confined for the most part to the parking ground in front of the building, which was badly ripped up, necessitating quite a lot of fill work. The Three Star Camp, farther along the road, appears not to have suffered badly as a result of the freshet, the cabins being located on a higher level than that part of the grounds devoted to tenting purposes. Some of the benches were seen to be holding a "lapful" of driftwood and debris, and the grass was flattened out as by a roller. At the Rustic Cabin place, where the thrilling rescue of last Thursday took place, things looked pretty rough, though the lunch and refreshment stand was doing business as usual. One of the two cabins spared by the rushing water lies tipped on its side, while the other leans tipsily having had a close call of it, apparently.

The camp site is one of those semi-flat places formed at frequent intervals in earlier years by the creek as it dumped cobbles, gravel and sand at these points during high water, and the cabins and tenting grounds were reached by a plank bridge which, being tethered by a steel cable, was not swept away. The small outbuilding, situated in a dense thicket, where the flood-besieged campers took refuge pending their rescue, is separated from the road and higher ground by a deep, wide gully, or depression which may possibly have been part of a race-way during the years, a half-century and more ago, when W. C. Durham, noted horseman and local law-suits litigant, had his "Long Dock Turning, Steve, Riddle and Hobby-horse" factory at approximately that location. A glance at this miniature valley is sufficient to explain why rescue operations were attended with great difficulties, as the creek, taking one of its favorite short-cuts in time of freshet, swept through this depression with terrific force, as it sought to regain the main current, some distance further downstream.

Although the sharp turn in the state road at the Phoenicia Garage is protected by huge boulders lying along the east bank of the creek, as well as by a man-made retaining wall, a gaping hole nevertheless was gouged out of the clay bank at that point, coming very close to undermining the roadbed. It was at the railroad junction sector at Phoenicia, on the west side of the creek, however, that the flood wrought its greatest havoc, the terrain at this point resembling a composite topographic photograph of No Man's Land and the stony bed of a creek in drouth season. It might appropriately be called a talking picture, since each and every detail of sunken tracks, huge piles of driftwood, an almost unbelievable serrated terrain, and so forth, eloquently reveal the destructive power of the water of the creek, as it hurdled the high bank at the pumping station and tore down the railroad tracks and the old road leading to the depot. The foundations of the pump house, at the west end of the iron wagon bridge were undermined and the stone abutment of the bridge itself appears to have had a close call of it. Driftwood on the floor of the bridge shows that the water topped the planking, some twenty feet above the bed of the creek. The New York Central turntable, between the pump house and the main tracks, became a receptacle for several feet of sand and gravel, the circular track being completely covered by the deposit.

One of the huge blocks of hewn bluestone which form the piers of the railroad bridge at the Stony Clove branch was loosened and all but torn from its position. Two cars of the Union Tank Company stand drunkenly on a depressed stretch of side track, while a large slice of roadbed was removed from the highway leading from Phoenicia down to Mt. Tremper on the west side of the creek. Big tree stumps littered the creek bank between the two bridges and these were being removed with block and tackle on Saturday. Still other men were engaged in removing logs and other driftwood from the tracks and yard. A sign, located at the north end of the yard, warning fast trains to slow down to a speed of 30 miles an hour between Phoenicia and Fleischmann's, apparently was superfluous for the time being, as railroad communication between Kingston and the Shandaken metropolis and trout fishermen's Mecca has been at a standstill for three days. Both Olive and Shandaken taxpayers will be obliged to pony up aplenty when the day of reckoning comes, and judging from what can be seen from the main arteries of travel the folks of the upper Esopus township will have to dig down in the old highway taxes jeans some deeper than their neighbors in Olive will, when the bills presented by Mother Nature on a rampage, finally come due. Selah.

Moles Are Carnivorous

Moles are carnivorous but occasionally eat some vegetable matter. Such rodents as field mice and pocket gophers that trespass in the runways of the moles are more responsible for the gnawing or hollowing out of mature bulbs and tubers.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

Back to Town Clothes of The Warmer Sort

New York—When you were a little girl and went back to the city after your summer in the country, the chances are that your mother bought you a new plaid dress to wear back to school. Well, now that you are grown up, it's a good old custom to follow. Plaids are very good, and some of the new woolens and fabric novelties generally are as appealing as one could wish.

The agreement has been reached that the silhouette should be narrow. In spite of the fact that a great many very opulent-looking costumes were shown at the Paris openings, not to mention our own, one must only indulge in these so-called "Lady Lou" fashions after the everyday needs of the wardrobe have been taken care of—with such dresses, suits and coats as ladies not known as Lou find more to their liking for everyday usage.

You will notice, or possibly have already, that sleeves have quieted down too. There are extremes for those who want the broadest shoulder line they can find, but that is not the average. Even Schiaparelli, who started our widening out at this point, has used considerable restraint in shoulder treatments and seems to like those that are finished with a roll or pad, rather than the spiked variety or her flat trays of yesteryear.

This is as good a time as any to remind you that it is a year of intense fabric interest. A year of fabric novelty, for the old-fashioned failles and ottomans and bengalines are after all novelties to this generation. The hairy woolens certainly are novelties in any age, so are some of the velvets, and for that matter the metal cloths which have sprung into favor and so aid in stressing the Oriental note.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Goupy uses skunk sometimes in white striped version. Another fur adopted here is silver fox with mauve tints, harmonizing with the fabric of the costume.

Light Touches for the Dark Suit

Two blouses for next autumn. The tailored one is of eggshell satin trimmed with hand fagoting; the frilly one of flesh pink georgette, trimmed with cream Valenciennes frills and groups of tiny tucks and hand drawn motif.

Schiaparelli Sounds an Oriental Note

The fact that Schiaparelli discards shoulder trimmings, but retains her padded shoulders in rounded outline, is of tremendous interest to followers of this contouriere. The mandarian neckline, including stand-up bands, used on daytime coats and jackets and further Oriental influence, are suggested in jackets in taffeta or velvet quilted on a crinoline back in a big trellis pattern. Military looking capes are shown in hiplength with band collar for both day and evening.

Priest Aids Science in Prehistoric Man Hunt

Dent, Colo.—The ceaseless effort of science to discover more about prehistoric man has been aided here by a Jesuit priest from Regis college at Denver, Rev. Conrad Bilgery, S. J.

M. P. Ryan, a stationmaster here, found some large bones near the station and notified Father Bilgery.

With attendants at the Regis college museum, Father Bilgery unearthed hundreds of bones of mammoth animals of the paleolithic age. These monsters of the elephant family, were in some instances 14 feet in height. Their tusks spread from 10 to 15 feet across.

Although no skeletons of men have been uncovered, experts discovered what appears to be a prehistoric man's workshop.
